

Civilian Flying May Be Barred At City Airport

Major McMullen Confirms Fears Held in Aviation Circles Here

Fears long held by Atlanta aviation authorities—that army flying eventually would drive civilian flying from local fields—were confirmed in a statement recently by Major A. B. McMullen, chief of the airport section of the Civil Aeronautics Authority, in an article in a national aviation magazine.

At the same time Major McMullen held out hope that municipalities could receive government aid for the construction of additional airports to take care of civilian aircraft, both commercial and private driven from their home fields by army or navy units.

Speaking before the national convention of state aviation officials, Major McMullen declared that civilian flying would not be used by the army or navy units.

This, according to Professor Montgomery Knight, head of the school of aeronautics at Tech, who commented on the article yesterday, means that civilian aviation may soon be barred from municipal airports, where an army flying unit is now stationed, and from the new airport at Camp Gordon, where a naval air training station will be established.

It does not necessarily mean that the regularly scheduled transports operating from Candler field will have to be transferred, though Major McMullen pointed out, that transports may continue to function from fields occupied by combat groups, but not by training groups.

The combat groups, he explained, have two-way radio plane equipment, and are subject to direction from a control station. Training ships cannot be so controlled.

Discussing the $40,000,000 congressional appropriation for airport development, Major McMullen said that though the main purpose of this money was for the development of fields for military aviation, part of it could be used for the construction of "new airports necessary to relieve traffic congestion by separating military and civilian aviation."

Airport Jeopardized. This Professor Knight interpreted to mean that Cobb county, which is now seeking a site for a new airport to accommodate civilian flying, could properly apply for federal aid in its construction.

Welfare Work Is Studied by Junior League

Twenty Members Taking Courses to Learn Functions of Agencies.

Twenty new provisional members of the Atlanta Junior League, taking courses in social welfare to prepare them for work in the various charitable projects carried on by the organization, yesterday visited Henrietta Eggleston Hospital for Children, where the Junior League maintains beds.

They began by learning to assist in the hospital wards, laboratories and chart rooms and heard Dr. M. Hines Roberts, Atlanta pediatrician and member of the board at Eggleston, lecture, who then took the young women on a tour of the hospital.

To learn the functions of Atlanta welfare agencies, other field trips will be made by the group this week. At 10:30 o'clock this morning in the Junior League House, West Peachtree street, Miss Ernestine McGill, of the Atlanta School of Social Work, will lecture on "Family and Child Care Case Work" and will draw an alignment between public and private service. Persons interested in welfare work are invited to attend the lectures.

At the same hour tomorrow Mrs. Horace Rhorer, formerly a member of the Fulton county department of public welfare, will speak on "Public Welfare Service" and Thursday morning Miss Florence Van Sicker, of the Child Welfare Association, will speak on "Foster Homes."

tion, and that Fulton, if a suitable site be found, could also seek federal funds.

"In view of the above, it is plain that civilian flying at both municipal airport and the proposed Gordon airport are seriously jeopardized by army and navy needs, Professor Knight pointed out. To meet the situation which is probably ahead of us, we must have another airport, such as the contemplated Cobb county field, and we could use more than that if the place can be found for it.

"Not only would this offer a haven to civilian flyers, but it would increase the chances of some airplane manufacturing firms locating here. There is a tremendous expansion of plane manufacturing going on now. Plants removing to inland sites. None have come to Atlanta because of the crowded airport facilities here. With a good civilian field available we have the almost certain of having a plant established here."

NEW MARRIAGE LAW. Hundreds of couples are escaping the three-day waiting period in the Washington state marriage law, enacted last year, by securing a court order granting them wedding licenses without delay.

Modern husbands will have a hard time believing this, but there was a time when mama had about the standing around the house of a slave. She didn't have anything to say about how papa ran his business, where he went at night, what kind of furniture, if any, should decorate the domicile, and all the cash money she saw was what-papa, in his generosity, saw fit to dole out to her, if any.

If she earned any herself, it was his, and any worldly goods she inherited was his, and if she died, he got it all. If she wished otherwise without his consent, it wasn't legal.

Whipping Allowed. In most states, he could beat her if he wanted to, so long as it was done in moderation and in the proper spirit. She had the privilege of bringing up the children, of course, but she didn't have any say-so as to how many there should be. And if papa didn't like the way she handled them he could give them away if he felt like it.

And there wasn't anything she could do about all this, for she couldn't vote.

Everybody thought this was just right and all the great minds supported it with ponderous words and epigrams, such as that of Voltaire, who said "Ideas are like beads. Women and young have none."

Sought Change. Everybody had this opinion, that is, except a few women, such as Lucy Stone and Susan B. Anthony and Julia Ward Howe, who took a different attitude, and braving a storm of vilification, abuse and ancient vegetables, set about to change the world. And they, with those who came after them, changed it.

Which brings us gradually up to the present date, and the meeting here today of the Georgia League of Women Voters, which is an outgrowth of the old campaign for women's liberation.

The Georgia League of Women Voters is an organization of women who have turned their freedom to good ends. They have used the right to think and act as they see fit.

please, to cast a sharp and critical eye over the field of Georgia politics, and to tell the world what they find good and bad therein.

They Have Ideas. And today they will be busy giving the lie to Monsieur Voltaire who made the crack about women having no ideas.

They have the idea that there is much to be done in the way of "National Defense on the Social Front" and their program this afternoon will try to polish up every facet of that thought. At a symposium luncheon Chess Abernathy will talk on "Suffrage," with Ralph McGill and Glenn Rainey, of Georgia Tech, contributing to the discussion. Dean R. P. Brooks, of the School of Commerce at the University of Georgia, will discuss taxes, with Wright Bryan, managing editor of the Journal, and W. C. Henson, Cartersville attorney, assisting. Representative Robert Ramspeck will lead a discussion on law-makers, aided by Lyle R. Chubb, secretary of the governmental research bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, and Carl T. Sutherland, personnel director for the city of Atlanta.

To Present Drama. And in the evening, at the Ansley, Miss Frances Gooch will present the dramatics department of Agnes Scott College in a play dramatizing the life of Lucy Stone, the first great suffragette, without whose efforts there might not have been so soon such a thing as votes for women.

Some time during the program, to contrast what Lucy Stone fought against with the place of women today, Miss Josephine Wilkins, president of the Georgia league, will read a little report on Georgia women in public life. It is a fairly impressive record, showing 77 women serving in county office today. Lucy Stone, who lived when women couldn't express themselves privately, much less publicly, would probably be pleased.

SAD REUNION—"Twas a sad reunion yesterday when, three days after two-year-old Murray Upshaw Jr. and his dog, "Nicky," disappeared from their home near Cartersville, the dog came walking alone into the Upshaw yard.

was stolen and that the persons who took him be kind to him, give him food, warmth and shelter from the weather. As she told me this, she shook her hair around, looked back out the window onto the rainy, gray day, and said: "God knows, he's never been cold, never been hungry and never been scared of anything. I just can't bear to think that the poor little fellow is out in this awful weather."

Then she cried—just a short sob. And she apologized for it.

"You've never been a mother or you'd know what I mean when I say I can't tell you how I feel or what I think."

But whether one had even been a mother or not, Mrs. Upshaw told me a story which would pluck any heartstrings. She's a brave, strong woman—we'd met before at the Euharlee barbecue. Her first sentence was to mention that meeting last summer. We talked along for almost a half-hour and she told me numerous things about her life—the time she spent with Corra Harris, her family, her marriage.

Asks Age.

Thoughtlessly, I asked her age; and, tactfully, she told me it was none of my business. Then she qualified that statement. She's as "old as wisdom and young as love."

We tried to work into the core of the mystery, or at least her ideas of the motive or the direct circumstances behind the entire event. The sandy-haired, young-looking mother, her eyes trembling with anxiety, was composed. She leaned her head against the posts of her tall, straight chair, ran her fingers along the rungs of its legs and often fidgeted with a near-by dresser drawer. But she was fully self-possessed.

She doesn't have any idea what happened—or how it happened. Young Murray has spent all of his time since he's been out of her arms running around the place. He's ridden over virtually every step of the farm astride someone's back, either his father's or some other man's. To him the entire universe, as far as he could see, was his own back yard.

"If you've never been a country child, or if you haven't ever known one, then you won't know how he felt about playing. He went everywhere. He didn't have any small place to play in like city children do," Mrs. Upshaw explained.

And so when he first went away, she thought he was on the mountainside playing. He often wandered away with Bud, his 3-year-old Negro playmate; but Bud wasn't at home Friday, and though Mrs. Upshaw was not alarmed when the child first disappeared, her nerves now are on every edge.

Mrs. Upshaw can't dope out any sort of solution to her problem. She peers out of her window as though she might expect any minute to see a small image come romping down the hillside calling—"mummy" or "daddy." But she can't understand why that little voice ever left.

Her husband has never had any enemies. He'd do a good turn even for a person he disliked. He has a humanitarian outlook on life. He loves people—likes to know each one well, to know his likes and dislikes—and, in the end, the wife added, "he'll strike up some kinda relation with you."

They haven't any money, she said. They've never had any feud with their mountainside neighbors. The only way Mrs. Upshaw can figure out her son's disappearance is this, (and it's probably more of a hope than a true thought; but she holds it closely, nonetheless):

She thinks somebody saw the child, loved children, and picked him up.

She hopes they'll give him warm clothes, good food and let nothing frighten him.

Little Murray always has been something of a daddy's boy. Upshaw refuses to correct him, or even to cross him in any way.

Mrs. Upshaw has to dish out the discipline around her house.

Now she's issued a plea—a prayer, in every sense. May her lost son be warm, well fed, and free from fear. His dog, Nicky, returned this morning in perfect health without even having the dandruff on his back moistened through and through. She hopes little Murray will be equally as lucky as "Nicky" was and that he'll soon be home without any scars.

kidnap, Sheriff Gaddis has no theory about it.

"It was my first thought that it would be a good idea to clear the woods and let the kidnaper—if there was a kidnaper—get in touch with the family," said the sheriff. "The family, however, want the search to go on, and so we are going ahead."

Another troop of Civilian Conservation Corps workers from Rydal—among the hundred now reduced to tens who have conducted the search since last Friday—returned to the effort, and went again over the terrain from which Nicky most likely had come.

Nothing was brought to light.

Dramatically, in late afternoon, Murray Sr., a much stronger and brighter man since Nicky's return, went off into the woods alone with the dog to seek the back trail.

Nothing, however, came of this.

Earlier he had said almost jubilantly in reply to a question: "Sure, Nicky's coming back means something. I feel sure we'll get some trace of our son now."

No Federal Bureau of Justice men, understood to have been enlisted in the case, appeared here.

There were a number of state highway patrolmen, under direction of Sergeant Culberson, commanding the Cartersville district, but Sheriff Gaddis was deciding all policies.

Numerous stories wide of the mark flew about the countryside, indicative of the state of mind of the whole region.

A telephone message stating "the puppy has come home" was mistakenly overheard and translated, "The body has been found," and the rumor spread through Cartersville and the country roundabout like wildfire.

Editor W. R. Frier, of the Barrow Herald, hurrying to the scene from Cartersville, when his staff man telephoned him of Nicky's return, found the clutch of his automobile slipping and he abandoned it beside the highway. This was about 10:30 o'clock.

At 4 o'clock a report reached Cartersville that a mysterious automobile had been parked beside the highway since about the time of the baby's disappearance three days ago. Investigation proved it to be the Frier machine.

Thus the rumors and theories flew about, with but one thing certain. This, as declared tonight by Sheriff Gaddis was:

"We have done everything we know to do. We are continuing the search."

Case Is Rested By Nehi Firm In 'Cola' Suit

Coaching of Witness Charged in Surprise Testimony.

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 11.—

(P)—The Nehi Corporation of Columbus, Ga., defendant in an injunction action brought by the Coca-Cola Company to prevent use of the word "cola" in advertising beverages, rested its case today.

H. L. Barnett, a New York attorney for the Pepsi-Cola Company in a suit entered against the concern by the Coca-Cola Company, was presented as a surprise witness by the Nehi Corporation.

The witness testified he had heard an investigator for the Coca-Cola Company coaching a Chicago bartender in an adjoining hotel room the night before being placed on the stand as a witness.

Barnett said the bartender was instructed "never to admit he ever heard of a cola drink" and to deny he "ever tasted a cola drink."

Carl C. Colbert, executive vice president and secretary of Nehi, returned to the stand and testified that 53 per cent of his company's business in Royal Crown Cola is in states where alcoholic beverages are unlawful.

Counsel for Nehi offered in evidence 258 bottles of cola beverages of brands different from Coca-Cola and Royal Crown Cola.

Red Premier, Hitler Open Parley Today

Russia Expected To Be Given Role in 'New Order.'

BERLIN, Nov. 11.—(P)—Soviet Russia's Premier-Vladimir Comissar Vyacheslav Molotov arrived in Berlin today for conferences with Adolf Hitler and German leaders. It was the first time he had ever left Russian territory. He is due in Berlin tomorrow.

Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop, with whom Molotov also will confer during his German stay, will meet the Russian at the Berlin railway station tomorrow.

Shortly afterwards, Molotov and German officials will open conferences to discuss and agree on policies of world-wide scope, informed sources said today, with the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo Axis and British-guaranteed Turkey high on the agenda.

Russia To Have Role.
"Molotov's visit doubtless goes beyond mere recognition of the international position of the Soviet Union and the positive friendship between the two powers," said Dienst Aus Deutschland, commentary with close foreign office connections.

If this last cryptic sentence has any meaning, it would seem to indicate Russia will be invited to play an active part on the Axis side in creating the "new order" of which Germany and Italy have made themselves sponsors in Europe and Africa and under which, by the Treaty of Berlin,

Japan is recognized by the Axis as the leader in the Far East. (In London, a source close to the Soviet embassy intimated Molotov's visit to the Nazi capital might result in new Russian-German understandings "safeguarding Russia's neutrality." This informant saw little hope for improvement, for the present at least, in Russian-British relations.)

(Other London diplomatic sources indicated the belief Russia's foreign policy now is motivated by fear of the German army and that this, if nothing else would prevent any real improvement in Moscow's relations with London.) German officials were reticent regarding details to be taken up with Molotov on this first trip of his life outside the Soviet Union.

The National Zeitung said bluntly, however, the question of Turkey, guardian of the strategic Dardanelles, lay within the scope of the conference.

Molotov's party includes 33 experts on foreign affairs, internal affairs, commerce, aviation and industry.

HITLER TO PAY REDS, BRITAIN SAYS
NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(P)—The British Broadcasting Company, in a German-language program heard here by CBS, asserted tonight:

"Stalin got a large remuneration for keeping out of the war. What will he get for entering the war? That Hitler and Ribbentrop are ready to pay the price Russia is asking for her collaboration is the measure of the extent of their failure to conquer Britain and of their fear of Anglo-American cooperation."

The announcer, discussing the German-Russian negotiations at some length, declared the Germans "hope to get something from Molotov (Russian premier-foreign commissar) which will make up for the failure to prevent the re-election of Roosevelt."

"Their plan is evident. Russia has to be dragged into the war, even against her will, as a counterweight against the increasing aid of the new world for Great Britain, against the increasing resistance of the peoples of Europe and the east, against the Chinese refusal to be co-opted with the Japanese imperialism."

"A world war of the greatest scope is their goal."

U.S.-Moscow Co-operation Is Held Futile

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(P)—Slow-moving talks between the United States and Soviet Russia toward a better understanding may be broken off entirely, it was believed tonight, as a result of Soviet Premier Vyacheslav Molotov's visit to Germany.

The visit was interpreted generally here as an indication that Russia was prepared to collaborate even more closely with the Axis powers and that efforts of the United States and Great Britain to improve their relations with Moscow were all but futile.

Speculation on the main purpose of Molotov's journey centered on Turkey, the neutral ally of Great Britain and guardian of the Dardanelles.

Despite a widely-held belief that Russia would never accede to German control of the straits leading into the Black Sea from the Mediterranean or extension of German influence to neighboring Turkey, certain informed quarters appeared to be expecting some such development.

RAF Bombers Raid Axis From Danzig, Naples

British Fliers Unload Explosives on New Towns in Germany.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—(P)—Striking into Axis territory never before touched by the war, Royal Air Force bombers last night blazed trails of fire across two continents in violent attacks on the broadest range they so far have attempted, the government disclosed tonight.

The far-flung picture was filled in by reports from here and Cairo, from the air ministry and the admiralty.

Driving through icy storms, British planes aimed new bombs at crucial military centers all across German-held territory "from the Baltic to the Bay of Biscay" and east to distant Danzig, the air ministry announced.

Planes Leave Ark Royal.
Important supply bases in Albania for Italian troops attacking Greece and the great Italian industrial city of Naples as well as Fascist outposts in Africa felt the impact of British bombs, the air ministry's news service added.

Cagliari, on the Italian island of Sardinia, was bombed by British planes from the aircraft carrier Ark Royal, the admiralty disclosed.

Measuring more than 1,400 miles across the perilous North Sea and over land dominated by Nazi guns, the round-trip to Danzig was said to be the longest ever attempted by British bombers across German areas. Danzig, once-free city of the Polish Corridor, was the exploding point of the present war.

Between the English Channel and the remote east German border, RAF pilots dumped their destructive loads, the air ministry said, on major plants feeding oil, munitions and planes to the German war machine.

Krupp, Fokker Bombed.
Objectives included the celebrated Krupp works at Essen in Germany, the big Fokker aircraft plant at Amsterdam in German-held Holland and oil plants at Gelsenkirchen. Railroad junctions were the targets of Danzig, Dessau, Munster, Mannheim and Dresden.

For Dresden, too, it was the first visit of British bombers.

Five British planes were missing, the ministry said.

305,000 Are Placed In Private Industry

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(P)—Federal Security Administrator McNutt reported today that the United States Employment Service placed 305,000 workers in private industry during September.

It was the largest placement of any month since October, 1939, he said.

He added that unemployment benefit payments dropped 29 per cent during the month to the lowest figure, $36,600,000, since December, 1939.

Liner Elizabeth Warms Up To Leave Today

Vessel Will Sail for Singapore, Reports Indicate.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(P)—Sea watches were set on the 85,000-ton liner Queen Elizabeth and her giant engines were warmed up tonight as maritime circles said the big Cunarder would leave either shortly after dawn or soon after dusk tomorrow.

Sailors disclosed that tonight was their last night ashore and said they had been ordered to report aboard at 4 a. m., E. S. T. Waterfront sources declared the vessel would sail for Singapore.

Previously, the Queen Elizabeth had been reported bound for Halifax after stopping at the Boston Navy Yard for overhauling.

Arrival today of 80 sailors from Liverpool via Montreal brought the 1,030-foot luxury liner's complement to more than 600 men.

CAPTAIN GETS CREDIT FOR SAVING LINER

LONDON, Nov. 11.—(P)—The coolness of the captain of the Canadian liner Empress of Japan and his Chinese quartermaster, who lay on the deck at the wheel to dodge machinegun bullets, was credited tonight with saving the ship from serious damage during a German plane attack in the Atlantic.

The skillful way the captain zig-zagged the ship out of danger to avoid a direct hit saved the vessel, passengers and crew members said.

Court Enjoins Highway Board In Debt Suit

New Contracts Barred, Hearing Is Ordered November 30.

LAGRANGE, Ga., Nov. 11.—(P)—The Georgia Highway Board was enjoined today from letting any new contracts for roads, equipment, material or supplies and from paying for purchases since July 1.

Superior Court Judge Lee B. Wyatt issued the order pending a hearing November 30 in a suit by MacDougald Construction Company, Atlanta contractors, who contended the state owes them $169,260 on 18 road contracts for which they have not been paid.

The petition was presented by B. D. Murphy, of the firm of Powell, Goldstein, Frazer & Murphy, of Atlanta, and was sworn to by Alex MacDougald, president of the company. Murphy was an assistant attorney general in the administration of former Governor Eugene Talmadge who won reelection this year to take office in January.

The suit charged the Highway Department had created debts in violation of the state constitution and the company's rights.

It said $4,000,000 in current obligations was unpaid and the department's deficit at the end of the 1940-41 fiscal year would "amount to between $8,000,000 and $9,000,000."

Chairman W. L. Miller, of the Highway Board, declined to comment. L. L. Patten and Herman Watson, the other two board members, could not be reached immediately.

Involved in the suit was a bidding for approximately 33,100 tons of sand asphalt which the petition said was to take place tomorrow.

Pardons, Paroles, Weeping Widows And Tax Money

Lots of criticism in the Georgia papers about Governor Rivers' granting so many pardons. Does look like a lot. Taxpayers put out gobs of money to support the courts which must spend money to get evidence and convict a bug operator or some other kind of crook and the Governor turns them loose—to start again. That's not in my department. And I do try to keep in my department—if any. Besides, I don't know. Before I'd jump on the Governor for pardoning Bill Sykes or Jack-the-Ripper I'd like to dig into the facts. Which takes work. And I don't like work. But it sets me thinking back to the grand old days in Tennessee, when "Bob" Taylor was Governor. The "Pardoning Governor," they called him.

On the stump the grand old "Bob" Taylor had an answer for that. He would pause, imbibe a drink of spring water from the only silver pitcher in the town where he was speaking, and tell about that widow woman.

That widow woman was the mother of a fine and stalwart son. Yes, he had his faults. Like the prodigal son. But he was a good lad at heart. True, he had carved up a few other good lads or shot a revenue or so and it was conceded he had slain the neighbors' hogs and converted them into his personal use, but he was a good boy. All those incidents were clearly cases of self-defense. Including the hogs.

"Bob" Taylor was a grand old guy. And an orator. When I say "orator," I mean he could orate. Like Mr. Roosevelt, he could charm a squirrel out of his tree. He could play the fiddle—and did—and he knew the magic of rhythm.

That Widowed Mother.

Imbibing a tall glass of spring water, he would explain to the proletariat why he pardoned that ill-used criminal, that martyr to the stern and implacable minions of the written law.

Because he was the sole support of his widowed mother. Because on that little hillside away up yonder, with a bare two acres in corn, and the one cow dead of the milk fever, and Old Blue, the possum dog, too feeble to bring in fresh meat, that little mother was waiting—and freezing and starving. Waiting for her boy. Her only son. Waiting for him to come home and clasp her in his arms and get in the corn crop and maybe hunt some fresh hog meat.

Oh, boy; oh, boy, and as many times as you wish to repeat that, "Bob" Taylor would have 'em weeping. Including me. I could see that little black-garbed widow crouching at the Governor's knees. Perhaps with a child at her breast, an extra-added touch, as they used to say on the vaudeville bills.

"I am your Governor," Mr. Taylor would declare, wiping his eyes with a huge red bandanna. "But, thank God, I am a man. I am a human. And what would you have done, may I ask you, fellow citizens? Would you have told that poor little widow woman, with a babe at her breast, to go back to her cabin and lie awake till Friday mornin' and realize that when the sun came up over the mountain her big, fine son, her only support, would have to step out on a scaffold with a rope around his neck and take a drop into eternity? My friends, do you realize what eternity is?"

The vote was always unanimous. In favor of "Bob" Taylor and his great heart. But I can say this, sincerely. "Bob" Taylor did have a great heart. I believe he turned 'em loose because he couldn't have brought himself to kill a cat or a mouse or worm. I couldn't, either. But I think I could consent to keeping them shut up and out of mischief for whatever term the judge had said.

Bumper Leaf Crop.

Eddie, our once-a-week yard man, who is yard man to neighbors on the other five days, reports he has never in his life found so many leaves to rake up and burn in to a compost heap as this year. I can understand that, because a week ago, inspired by a fit of energy, I volunteered to rake leaves and accumulated enough of them to fill Atlanta's famed auditorium to the rafters. And Eddie swears that three days later he raked twice that many. I would call Eddie a liar.

Maybe that means something. More than usual moss on a tree predicts a hard winter. And all that. Heavier fur on bears, for instance. We have no bears but we do have squirrels. But I never could get close enough to one to measure his fur.

But I can't figure what a double crop of leaves indicates. The leaves all come down before real winter sets in. The prophets may interpret it as imminence of war. They've found that on oddly-inscribed hens' eggs.

All I know is that I miscalculated the tonnage of autumn leaves and have blisters on my thumbs from that rake handle.

Quick-witted friend of mine pulled himself out of a jam a few evenings ago. Somebody asked him about the reputation of an acquaintance who runs an automobile "graveyard," taking old cars to pieces for the replacement trade.

"Who, Bill?" returned my fast-thinking friend, who speaks no evil of anybody. "Well, you could call him a man of parts."

Good Morning—By Louie D. Newton

Macon once again becomes the Mecca of Georgia Baptists with the opening this morning at 10 o'clock of the 119th annual session of the Georgia Baptist Convention in the historic meeting house of the First Baptist church of Georgia's central city. The convention will continue through Thursday noon. Dr. Ellis A. Fuller, pastor of the First Baptist church, Atlanta, is president of the convention, and Dr. B. D. Ragsdale, of Macon, is the secretary. Dr. Ragsdale has served continuously as secretary since 1896. Dr. Frederick S. Porter, pastor of the First Baptist church of Columbus, will deliver the convention sermon at noon today.

There are more than a half million white Baptists in Georgia, 505,839, to be exact, and that isn't the final figure, since it does not show the increase for the first ten months of 1940. I am quoting the above figure from the 1939 annual. Based on the average of increase for the past several years, it is a conservative estimate to say that the present membership is perhaps 512,000. There are more than a half million Negro Baptists in Georgia, which means that approximately one-third the total population of the state is represented in the membership of the Baptist churches, white and colored.

I will give further interesting statistics regarding the white Baptists of Georgia in tomorrow's column. Let me now gather up some facts with reference to previous meetings of this convention in Macon. The convention met the first time in Macon in 1846. B. M. Sanders was president, with P. H. Mell as secretary. J. S. Law was the convention preacher. In 1860 the convention returned to Macon, and P. H. Mell was president and J. F. Dagg was secretary. N. M. Crawford was the convention preacher. In 1866 they met again in Macon, and P. H. Mell was then president and J. F. Dagg was secretary. B. F. Tharpe preached the convention sermon. In 1872 the convention met in Macon, with D. E. Butler as president and G. R. McCall as secretary. T. E. Skinner was the preacher that year.

Twenty-two years elapsed before the convention again met in Macon in 1894, with J. H. Kilpatrick as president and G. R. McCall as secretary. That year G. S. Tutwiler preached the sermon. In 1905 the convention met in Macon with Governor W. J. Northen as president. Dr. Ragsdale was secretary, as he has been in all succeeding years. Dr. A. B. Vaughn preached the sermon in 1905. In 1918 the convention met in Macon, with Dr. John D. Mell as president, and Dr. Rufus W. Weaver as the preacher. Again in 1919 it met in Macon, with Dr. O. P. Gilbert as the preacher, and in 1923, with Dr. Mell continuing as president, and Dr. W. A. Tallaferrero as the preacher. In 1930 they returned to Macon, with Dr. John E. White as president and Dr. Bunyan Stephens as the preacher. In 1932 Dr. Ellis Sammons was president, and Dr. John S. Wilder was the preacher. In 1937, the last year the convention met in Macon, Dr. Aquila Chamlee was president, and Dr. W. H. Knight was the preacher.

More about Macon and Georgia Baptists tomorrow.

Preparedness Is Highlight of Parade Here

Talmadge Tells Armistice Day Crowd U. S. Will Be Ready.

The spirit of preparedness and patriotism reached its peak yesterday in Atlanta and Georgia.

Highlighted by the rhythmic beat of armed marchers, the back-firing of modern mechanized units of the Sixth Cavalry from Fort Oglethorpe, the din of blaring bands playing martial music and scores of patriotic addresses, the 22d anniversary of the signing of the armistices ending the first World War was observed enthusiastically in Atlanta and throughout the Empire State of the South.

The six-mile display of sentiment for soldiers of World War I ended at Grant Field when Governor-elect Talmadge called for preparedness and warned "if America has to go into this war, she'll be there as she has been in all the wars in which she has fought."

Look Forward to Peace. But while the war drums beat, and preparedness was stressed, hundreds of speakers looked forward to peace . . . a peace which was lost in 1918 although the democracies won the war.

Vocal calls to maintain the "American way of life," protection of American institutions, and defense of democracy were the keynotes of appeals in every section of Georgia.

Governor-elect Talmadge, who had walked at the head of the American Legion units at the head of the Atlanta parade and who got a lion's share of the applause from thousands who lined the route despite threatening skies, spoke at the Rose Bowl.

"If you lead a bulldog around with you, nobody is likely to jump on you," he said in emphasizing the need for preparedness against war. He added "America cannot take the stand of being a permanent guard for Europe."

State Adjutant General Marion Williamson, in charge of the draft, declared eternal vigilance is the price of peace in an address at Russell High school.

"In our national life Armistice Day represents the triumphal victory of a great, free people over the forces of oppression and tyranny," he said.

McDowell Richards, president of the Columbia Theological Seminary, told fellow members of the Atlanta Rotary Club "Armistice Day symbolizes certain values which must not die."

Clark Howell, editor and publisher of The Constitution, presided at a ceremony in which the following club members, who were overseas when the 1918 Armistice PARADE FOR PEACE—Thousands of soldiers, ex-service men and patriotic organizations yesterday swung down famous Peachtree to flag-draped Five Points as Atlanta joined the rest of the nation in observance of the 22d anniversary of the signing of the armistice which ended hostilities in the first World War. Modernized mechanized units, the result of the American preparedness program, gave visible evidence that the United States is preparing to fight for peace, if the occasion arises, and were regarded as a stern warning to aggressors. The celebration also brought home to thousands the realization that although the democracies won, they lost peace. Similar parades and celebrations were held throughout the state in observance of the day.

was signed, told where they were at the time:

Dr. Frank Bolen, Marvin Crout, Phil Graves, Luther Randall, Mose Pope, Carl Wolf, Jess Strubling, Edwin Crutchfield, Dick Courts, Vivian Cooper, Lawrence Mansfield, Roland Hall, Legare Davis, Dr. Edgar Ballinger, Fay Pierce, Colonel Felix Gross, George Shadburn, Bill Caye and Ralph Paris.

Sponsored by the American Legion post of Monroe county, the Forsyth Armistice Day celebration featured an address by Ralph Jones, associate editor of The Atlanta Constitution, who discussed the international situation and America's relation to the war in Europe.

The Sixth Cavalry, from Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., commanded by Lieutenant Colonel John Considine, one of the Army's newest mechanized units, was a conspicuous part of the Atlanta parade. It rolled along on 52 giant truck trailers, 57 armored scout cars, 75 single motorcycles and 50 sidecar motorcycles, composing what military experts believe to be one of the fastest moving military units in the world.

Beginning at Whitehall and Hunter streets, the six-mile-long "tail" reached to Fort McPherson and extended within the gates. But it moved rapidly, and by 11 o'clock the entire formation had reached the Rose Bowl at Grant Field, where the speaking took place.

The regular Army's cavalry swept through the downtown section at a rapid gait. Following somewhat more leisurely was the 179th Field Artillery, National Guard, with huge trucks hauling rubber-tired 155 mm. howitzers.

Then came marching units—those which usually participate in Armistice day observances in Atlanta. They included the Georgia Tech naval unit, Boys and Tech High school bands and R. O. T. C. units, Fulton High school band and cadets, Marist College cadets, Legionnaires and the Atlanta Post No. 1 drum and bugle corps, Spanish-American War veterans, Murphy and O'Keefe Junior High schools.

Georgia Boys Are Active at FFA Session

21 Members and Advisors Attend Convention in Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Soft southern draws carried weight in Convention Hall today as 21 Georgia Future Farmers of America and their advisors tackled their share of the business facing the 13th annual convention of students of vocational agriculture.

Among official boy delegates from 231,000 members in the 48 states and the territories was Alpha Fowler, Douglasville, Ga., past president of the Georgia Association of Future Farmers and one of the state's three recipients of the American Farmer degree. W. H. Belcher, Mowen, Ga., present state president, was official delegate.

Other young Georgians who received the American Farmer degree were Quinn Smith, of Dalton, and Marvin Clark, of Sale City. To qualify for that honor, each boy must have earned and saved at least $500 from farming pursuits and invested an equal amount in farming and farm equipment. He must be an outstanding leader among young people of his community.

A Georgia boy, Henley Adams Vansant, of Douglasville, won honors in the FFA speaking contest, placing fifth. First prize went to Douglas Charles Fisk, of Hunter, N. D. Other winners were Alvin Bauer, Woodland, Wash.; Hoosaka Furumoto, of Ninole, T. H., and William King, Gaithersburg, Md.

Included among Georgian vocational agriculture directors, supervisors and teachers who made the 1,000-mile trip north were: M. D. Collins, state superintendent of schools; M. D. Mobley, state director of agricultural education; T. G. Walters, state executive secretary; G. L. Martin, assistant state supervisor; and Advisors T. G. Scott, Jr.; W. K. Warren, of Harlem; J. L. Article Gave Wrong Idea, Kennedy Says

Interview Saturday Was Off the Record, Envoy Asserts.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy said in a formal statement tonight that an interview with him published by the Boston Globe and distributed nationally Saturday was "very happy to give them my thoughts off the record, but I would not want to set forth."

Kennedy said that he had received Louis M. Lyons, of the Boston Globe, and Ralph Cogan, of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, for an off-the-record conversation. The interview, as reported by Lyons, quoted Kennedy as saying that "democracy is finished in England" and may be finished in the United States, and that the presence of "Labor men" in the British government "means national socialism is coming out of it."

"When Mr. Lyons came to see me in Boston, I made it clear to him in the presence of Mr. Cogan and Mr. Edmondson, of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, that I should be very happy to give them my thoughts off the record, but I would not want to set forth."

"Mr. Lyons made no notes during the visit. Whatever he wrote was entirely from memory. Many statements in the article show this to be true because they create a different impression entirely than I would want to set forth. Many of them were inaccurate."

Aviation Gasoline Hits Record Peak

CHICAGO, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The American production of aviation gasoline was disclosed today to have reached a "record peak" of some 45,000,000 gallons a month. Fred Van Coven, director of the department of statistics of the American Petroleum Institute, made known also that stocks had more than doubled in the last year and now amounted to about 5,700,000 barrels, or nearly 240,000,000 gallons.

Van Coven, participant in the institute's 21st annual meeting, said that it was difficult to determine how much 100 Octane Super aviation fuel was included in the stocks and in present production, but remarked that production of all grades of aviation fuel was "far in excess" of normal needs.

Body Discovered On Lonely Trail

DETROIT, Nov. 11.—(UP)—A trapper today found the body of George M. Davis, a zone office employee of the Chevrolet Motor Company, shot to death in his car on a lonely trail near Plymouth.

Police reported that Davis had been missing since Friday, when he checked out of a Battle Creek hotel intending to return to his home in Detroit.

The trapper, who was not identified, told police he had noticed an automobile parked on the wooded road yesterday. Seeing it there again today he investigated and found the body. One bullet had been fired through Davis' head. Police, unable to find a weapon at the scene, believed Davis may have been slain.

Lucas, Jenkins Are To Operate Roxy Theater

New Management Has Not Yet Determined Policy.

Operation of the Roxy theater will be transferred Sunday from the Robert E. Meyer interest at Birmingham, Ala., to Lucas & Jenkins, Georgia theater group, William K. Jenkins, secretary-treasurer, announced yesterday.

The theater, built in 1927 at a cost of approximately $1,000,000, seats 2,300 persons. Pointing out that the lease was made in the face of an overestimated theatrical condition in Atlanta, Mr. Jenkins said the policy of the Roxy has not been determined as yet. But he did say that the first show under the new management would feature a stage attraction of the Andrews Sisters and Bunny Berigan and his orchestra.

In discussing the overseeing angle, he said, "No city of similar size in the United States has as many theaters as Atlanta, and in the past year approximately 10,000 seats have been added."

Since the Roxy's construction in 1927, it has been operated by Public Theaters, H. B. Wilby and Lucas & Jenkins until 1939 when the Meyer interests took it over.

1st World War, Wasn't in Vain, Roosevelt Says

Saved Democracy for Full Generation, President Declares.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(P) Standing near the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, President Roosevelt today reproved those who say the World War was fought in vain and asserted that, to the contrary, it saved democracy for a full generation and made possible its resistance to force in 1940.

He spoke at the close of a brief and solemnly impressive Armistice Day service, in the course of which an aide placed a wreath of white chrysanthemums upon the tomb, and an Army bugler sounded "taps."

Lays Cornerstone.

Later in the day, Mr. Roosevelt laid the cornerstone of the projected Naval Medical Center in near-by Bethesda, Md., with a speech saying that it was fitting "to assemble again in the patriotic cause of preserving the well-being of those who, living, wear the uniform of our defense."

Both addresses stressed the theme of "a living democracy—a democracy which intends to keep on living," as he put it in the second of the two speeches. Denying, in the first, that democracy "can or will be snuffed out in our lifetime," he predicted that people living under the "iron heels" of modern conquerors would "rebel."

As to the World War, he asserted that a hundred years hence historians would brand as "puny and false," the efforts of "some of our own countrymen to make us believe that the sacrifices made by our own nation were wholly in vain."

Preserved New Order. "Historians will say rightly that the World War preserved the new order of the ages for at least a whole generation—a full twenty years—and that if the Axis of 1918 had been successful in military victory over the associated nations, resistance on behalf of democracy in 1940 would have been wholly impossible."

"And so, America is proud of its share in maintaining the era of democracy in that war in which we took part. America is proud of you who served—and ever will be proud."

At the medical center, Mr. Roosevelt said that the new building, involving a 500-bed hospital of modern structure and equipment, were "a necessity even before the existing expansion in our defense forces."

The 247-acre tract upon which the center is situated, he said, will allow expansion "to any point that might become necessary in a national mobilization."

Many Perish In the Grip of Terrific Winds

Father, Daughter, Son Burn After Home Is Wrecked.

Three were burned to death, two were drowned and six were fatally crushed as terrific winds spread destruction in many parts of the nation yesterday.

L. L. Moore, 40; his daughter, Alma, 10, and his one-month-old son burned to death after their home was wrecked at Canton, Ill. Mrs. Amelia Kerr, 60, was crushed under a falling tree in Chicago and Paul Hegstrom, 45, was injured fatally when a roof he was building collapsed. Philip Jensen, a lineman, was killed when a pole toppled at Milan, Ill.

At Grand Rapids, Mich., where the blow attained a 63-mile velocity at the airport, a 30-foot brick chimney crashed through the roof of the Applied Arts Corporation, bringing death to Stanley Nowak, 28, and injuries to six fellow workmen.

Falling walls killed Vincent Wiza, 54, in Milwaukee, and Justine Grzesiak, 27, in South Bend, Indiana.

Two duck hunters were caught in the squall on the Illinois river near Liverpool, Ill., and drowned. The victims were Bryan McCracken and William Raker, both of Banner, Ill., and each about 26. At least a score of hunters was on the same river at Mossville, Ill., when the storm struck. All were reported to have reached shore except five men and a boy who may have landed in a swamp area along the stream.

Approximately 25 Chicagoans were injured—most of them by flying glass and debris—during a brief gale that was gauged at 65 miles at its peak. A huge electric sign, measuring 125 by 250 feet, smashed to the ground. The damage was estimated at $175,000. The winds were calculated at 53 m. p. h. in Milwaukee, 54 in Cleveland and 63 at the St. Louis airport.

Farther west many states witnessed a preview of winter at its worst. Heavy snow burdened nine states. Among the minimum temperatures were Hot Springs, S. D., and Minot, N. D., —10; Alliance, Neb., —8; Sheridan, Wyo., —4; Akron, Col., —3.

A 45-mile wind whipped snow into blinding clouds in Minnesota. The state highway department reported the "worst blizzard" in memory at Willmar. Roads were almost impassable at Wadena and crews searched for an overdue passenger bus. Duck hunters caused much anxiety.

War Was Lost In Just 10 Days, French Reveal

Started With 1,200,000 Men, Ended With 65,000.

VICHY, France, Nov. 11.—(UP)—The French general staff today completed the first coherent account of the blitzkrieg fighting from May 10 until the armistice on June 24, disclosing that in the end France had barely seven of 100 divisions left.

It took 30 typewritten pages for the general staff to tell the whole story of the war and its material preparation. The whole war was lost in 10 days of real action—June 4 to June 14 when the Germans broke through the line at Amiens—Paris—Laon—Sedan and swept across the natural barriers of the Somme, Seine, Marne, Aisne and Loire valleys.

Allies Far Outnumbered.

The general staff summary is particularly interesting for a comparison of the rival armies on May 10. Germany had 125 divisions plus 10 Panzer divisions of 500 tanks each. The Allies had 90 French and 10 British divisions of which only 10 were in the front line and 20 were second reserve and too old for front-line duty.

Germany had 7,500 tanks, the Allies 200. Germany had 3,500 bombers, of which 64 were obsolete in the first line. France had 100 bombers of which 64 were obsolete and 420 pursuit planes, mostly American Curtiss ships recently delivered. England had only 64 planes in France and sent others over sparingly from English bases to participate in action, then fly home.

Between September 2, 1939, and May 10, 1940, England was able to organize only 10 divisions—less than in the same period of 1914-15—while Germany created 43 new divisions. The Allies could not have hoped to overtake Germany in men and materials before 1941 and until then Germany would keep the initiative of operations.

The German attack through Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg had been foreseen since start of the war. The Allies could either (1) wait and take the shock on the fortified frontiers or (2) go into Belgium and try to halt the invaders.

Exact Figures Disclosed.

The Supreme Allied War Council in November, 1939, chose the second alternative and decided to try to hold the German army off the farthest possible eastern point to prevent wiping out the Belgian armies and to protect the rich Channel ports and shield the French industrial basin of Lille.

The general staff now makes public for the first time the exact figures of the disastrous Battle of the North which wiped out the Ninth Army Corps, Giraud's Seventh Army.

The report shows that 350,000 men were safely evacuated from Dunkerque, of which 250,000 were British and 90,000 French. Nine British divisions embarked at Dunkerque and disappeared from the French battlefields.

In that Battle of the North, France lost 24 infantry divisions, two cavalry divisions, three light and one heavy motorized divisions.

At that stage France had of her original 100 divisions only 43 infantry divisions, three cavalry and three motorized divisions on the long front from the sea to Longuyon, and 17 divisions holding the Maginot Line from Longuyon to Basle.

As a result, when the second phase of the war began on the Somme June 4, Germany still had

125 divisions but the French lines were badly thinned out.

General Maxime Weygand,

taking over from General Maurice

Gamelin, realized that a continuous front line was impossible, so he devised emergency tactics consisting of a series of disconnected strong points, generally dependable villages where tanks, artillery, machineguns and troops were massed to dispute passage of German divisions.

But in three days—June 5

through June 7—the Somme front

was broken and the Germans

forced their way across the Aisne

at Soissons.

After that fierce battle, the French were seriously menaced

with their divisions cut down 59

per cent.

Nearly 1,000,000 Men Lost.

The French were outnumbered at that time 110 to 62 and on June 12 Weygand declared that defeat was inevitable and ordered

Italians Lose 13 Planes in British Raids

RAF Claims 'Utter Rout' of Fascists in Sky Battles.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The Italian air force, joining the Germans in the roaring Armistice Day raids on these islands with whom Italy shared victory in 1918, lost 13 of 28 Axis planes blasted out of the air during the day, the air ministry announced tonight.

An "utter rout" was the way the British proudly summed up the repulse of the Italian attacks, aimed chiefly at British channel shipping while other Axis squadrons of up to 150 planes ranged far inland throughout the day and kept it into the night.

A channel gale halted the night assaults early, however, and London's anti-aircraft batteries went quiet after five daylight alarms.

The bag of Mussolini's planes—eight bombers and five fighters—the first recorded in the air siege of Britain, was accomplished by the RAF without the loss of a single plane, the air ministry announced, and only two British craft were listed as lost to the Germans.

Meanwhile strong indications that Britain might launch her first major long offensive of the war against the Axis in the Near East with troops who "know the desert game" appeared tonight simultaneously with announcement of the return of War Secretary Anthony Eden from an inspection of the British Mediterranean forces.

A high British source declared that every man, gun, tank and plane that can be spared from defense of the United Kingdom was being rushed to Egypt and other Near Eastern sectors.

WATER MADE WETTER.

It has been discovered in Philadelphia that certain chemical agents which make water "wetter" and are contained in some new forms of soap, also kill numerous kinds of deadly germs. The agents make water so "wet" that it penetrates through the feathers of birds, even waterfowl.

Gabon Surrenders to de Gaulle; Warships Enter Harbor.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The surrender of Libreville, principal port of the Gabon colony of French equatorial Africa, to the "Free French" forces of General de Gaulle was announced today by the de Gaulle headquarters here.

The announcement said the commanding officer at Libreville surrendered at 4:40 o'clock Sunday morning and the "Free French" warships Savorgnan de Brassa and Commandant Domineuf had entered the city harbor.

General de Gaulle himself in a five-minute broadcast at Leopoldville, Belgian Congo, announced merely that "Gabon has been on the side of the Free French forces since yesterday."

Libreville was founded by the French in 1849 on the estuary near the mouth of the Gabon river. Gabon's population in 1936 was reported at 1,223 Europeans and 408,516 natives. Its area is 93,218 square miles.

Indo-China's Leader Quits, Japan Reports

Pro-de Gaulle Sentiment Given as Reason for Resignation.

TOKYO, Nov. 12.—(Tuesday)—(AP)—Domei, Japanese news agency, reported tonight from Hanoi, French Indo-China, that Rear Admiral Jean DeCoux had resigned as governor general of that French colony.

The agency said the reason for his resignation was reported to be the increasing difficulties created by a strong group in Saigon favoring the "Free French" movement of General Charles de Gaulle.

It said the French government at Vichy was expected to appoint a successor soon.

Admiral DeCoux replaced General Georges Catroux at the head of the Indo-China government last July 20. In September he yielded air bases and other rights to Japanese forces which entered the colony.

More American Supplies Reach Chinese Center

Regular Flow of War Cargo Now Assured, Officials Say.

KUNMING, Yunnan Province, Nov. 11.—(UP)—Additional American supplies for China's armies arrived at this distribution center from Lashio today and officials of the China southwest transportation administration said that measures now are in effect which "virtually guarantee" a regular flow of cargo over the vital munitons highway which links China's Nationalist capital in Chungking with the Burmese seaport of Rangoon.

Transportation officials, trained by American experts, said that thousands of tons of cargo were being handled in both directions daily and that new local highways have been opened to feed the Burma traffic artery.

So successful is the movement of outgoing cargo, it was said, that China should be able to export enough within a more dangerous the national task

flaming ruins for victims, living and dead.From 1,000 to 2,000 persons were the injured and homeless and the new shocks only added to the work of rehabilitation and the toll of the dead and injured.No Americans were reported definite check.What effect the disaster would have upon the military future of southeastern Europe could not be foretold tonight.Rumania's rich oil fields lay like a vast tinder box awaiting a guarding the wrecked wells and open fissures where oil oozed to setting the second blaze since res-cue workers began digging for vic-

and appeared out of control.Dust explosions hampered the efforts of hundreds of German soldiers and Rumanian firemen to localize it, and a square mile around the blaze was roped off.Numerous other fires were reported.The most serious was at Galati, on the Danube river, where the death toll was not estimated.Sixty-five per cent of the homes

(AP)—The Turkish official radio and press indicated tonight that they believed a German military move in the Balkans to aid Italy was imminent and that this might be the essential reason for the Berlin visit of Russian Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav
Molotoff.The official Turkish radio said Yugoslavia's position was "very important, and it is probable that this is one of the questions to be considered between Molotoff and the German leaders."Neither the radio nor the newspapers hinted that Turkey would act if German forces did enter Yugoslavia. Most foreign observers in Turkey held the belief that Turkey would move only if Bulgaria acted.The Turkish radio commented that since the invitation to Mol-otoff "originated with Germany, it seems it was Germany which felt the necessity of the visit. The root of necessity is unknown, but these are current foreign rumors.""1. Because Germany feels it is necessary to rescue Italy and also wants Russian permission;"2. Because Russia has been informed of such an attempt by Germany and has demanded an explanation;"3. That Germany wishes to explain her 'new order' to Russia."The radio added that "Germany cannot ignore the Italian misfortune in Greece... German support of Italian claims against Greece grows stronger—but if Yugoslavia resists, Germany cannot succeed in helping Italy."Clears the Way for canyon, Tonto saw where the Texas Ranger's horse had bolted when the badly wounded man had dropped the reins. He studied the tortuous path among the rocks and marveled that a man who had been so severely injured that he couldn't mount or hold his horse had been able to travel the trail.Tonto's lithe figure made its slow way up toward the cave. He had to clutch with all his strength to sharp rocks to keep from falling. There were times when the only footing was a ledge of rock several inches wide. But finally Tonto reached the cave.A small stream of water fell from the mouth of the cave to splash into the canyon. Tonto followed the stream into the cave, walking on sandy shale along the water's edge. It was dusk outside the cave and almost dark within. Then Tonto saw the wounded man.He lay unconscious, half in and half out of the water. His right foot was badly wounded by a bullet and another slug had grazed his head. The head wound wasn't critical, as Tonto found when he examined it, but the foot woundwas an ugly gash that had torn away half of the foot.Tonto felt the Texas Ranger's wrist.

There was no pulse discernible. He kneelt, and placed an ear close to the chest of the unconscious man. There he could tell that the heart still functioned, but ever so feebly. The man had one slim chance to live. Tonto bathed the wounds and dressed them. He took the neckchief from the Texas Ranger's throat and tied it about the leg above the wounded foot. Inserting the barrel of the Ranger's gun beneath the neck-chief, he turned it, increasing the pressure of the cloth on the artery. This crude tourniquet proved to be effective.
The seepage was stopped in the wounded foot.Then the Indian hurried to the ledge outside the cave. There was a plentiful supply of twigs there, which had fallen from overhanging trees above. Gathering a handful of these, Tonto returned to the Texas Ranger's side and built a fire. He prepared a hot broth using meat from a package in his knapsack, and water from the stream. Patiently he poured this warm health-giving fluid into the mouth of the still form, allowing it to drop down the man's throat a tiny bit at a time.Tonto used all the skill he knew in treating the wounded man. He stayed there through the night, without sleeping, to care for his patient in every way he could and to watch closely for the slightest sign of consciousness. Finally, soon after dawn came, the Texas Ranger slowly opened his eyes. They were steady, gray eyes which had a depth in them that seemed familiar to the Indian.Eyes of white and red man met. Recognition dawned in each. The wounded Texas Ranger was none other than the white man who had saved Tonto's life years ago! Tonto drew the silver bullet from his pocket, holding it where the wounded man could see it.The white man nodded. "We..."
he muttered softly, "we meet again after so long.""Kemo Sabay," replied the Indian.
"Kemo Sabay," returned the white man."Now you rest," said Tonto, "you got-um plenty bad wound."The white man nodded. "It has been a long time," he said."Tonto stay," the Indian explained briefly. "You not worry. You saved Tonto's life. Tonto help you now. Tonto stay here, fix-um wound. Five, maybe six day, we leave cave. Then you all well again."The Texas Ranger's mouth softened into the faintest suggestion of a smile.
An involuntary sigh broke through his lips, and his eyes closed. He lay back, and once more the white man slept.And, as Tonto kept the vigil, he recalled that this day, when he had again found his old friend, was Tonto's birthday. He recalled, too, his father's prophecy about the white man who would be his constant friend.Surely the Ranger must live! This was the only birthday gift Tonto could ask.(Concluded next Tuesday. Paste each

SOLUTION—That part of the Union Station lined in white was pictured in yesterday's Constitution for identification. Of all those who identified it correctly, H. Enzor, of 1450 Memorial drive, S. E., crammed the most facts into the required 25 words, and was declared winner of a brand-new $1 bill.

H. Enzor Wins For Identifying Building Photo

Another Picture Presented Today for Readers To Name.

Do you know Atlanta? Do you know it well enough to identify the building, part of which is pictured in an adjoining column?

Do you know enough about the building to write an informative 25-word letter about it? If so, a dollar may be yours. The Constitution will pay a dollar to the reader who jams the most facts about the structure into 25 words. In case of a tie, the letter with the earliest postmark will be declared the winner. Be sure your letter contains facts—just to identify the picture is not enough.

Yesterday morning's paper carried an angle shot of the Union Station. The picture was correctly identified by most of those who entered the contest, but H. Enzor, 1450 Memorial drive, S. E., a postal employee, did the best job in the opinion of the judges. Mr. Enzor will find a dollar bill in his mail tomorrow.

Letters describing the building shown today with three tiers of windows should be mailed to the Contest Editor, Atlanta Constitution, immediately. All should carry the contestants' name and return address on the upper left-hand corner of the envelope.

A complete picture of the building will be in The Constitution tomorrow.

● Thousands know of the amazing benefits of S.S.S. Tonic to help build rich, red blood...to increase the appetite...to aid digestion

If you are past middle-life you will want to give particular attention to two important body functions—one, to keep your natural stomach digestive juices flowing...two, to keep your blood rich and healthy.

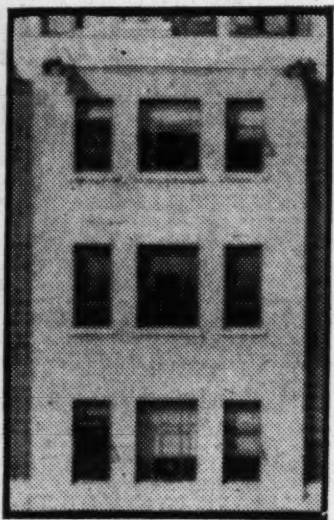

Frequently, as the years advance, the stomach becomes sluggish in pouring out its digestive juices to make use of the food eaten...likewise, wear and strain of worry, overwork, colds, and sickness often reduce one's blood strength.

Now you may rebuild your blood strength and restore sluggish stomach digestion, in the absence of an organic trouble or focal infection, with the famous S.S.S. Tonic.

S.S.S. acts two ways

In S.S.S. Tonic you go after the trouble in two ways...first you increase the appetite and better your stomach digestion—thus making better use of the food you eat—secondly, thin, weak, watery blood is made rich and red again thus giving you a boost in energy.

Join the happy thousands S.S.S. may be just what you need to get you on the right road to health and happiness again...it helps build sturdy health...that's why so many say it "makes you feel like yourself again."

NEW TEASER—Whoever gets the most facts into a 25-word description of the building of which these three tiers of windows are a part stands to win a good clean dollar bill.

Wise Charges G. O. P. Is Still Fighting F.D.R.

Says Democrats Would Have Been Lynched for Such Acts.

BOSTON, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Dr. Stephen S. Wise, New York rabbi, criticized the Republican party's national leaders last night as having not led "their party in patriotic and united support of the President."

"One hundred and twenty hours have passed since the election," he told the Ford Hall Forum, "and all that once great party is interested in is continued opposition. 'If Democrats ever assailed a Republican president as Republicans have assailed and harassed both Woodrow Wilson and Franklin D. Roosevelt they would have been lynched.'"

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS, Staff Correspondent.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—The Georgia State Employment Service found jobs in private industry for 6,590 persons during September, it was revealed in a report issued today by Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator.

In addition, the report showed, the Georgia service placed 1,940 persons in public works jobs during the same month, and located temporary jobs for 232 others.

Although Georgia's September job placements represented a 32 per cent decrease from placements during the previous month, it was pointed out that new applications received by the state service during September decreased by 15 per cent from the August figure.

Slim Waist Makes You Look, Feel Younger

By Ida Jean Kain.

Every inch you put on your waistline makes you look two years older—and feel it! To get a line on your waist, place your hand at the side and see how much of it you can pick up between the thumb and forefinger. If you can pick up more than half an inch, that means you need trimming down.

Slumping often makes the waist measure thicker than necessary and the exercises that pull you slim in the middle will also straighten you out. The stretching will slim the waist faster when the hips are anchored, so sit down to do your slimming.

Position: Sit on chair with arms stretched overhead and hands clasped. Now, pull up from the hips to the ribs. Hold it!

Movement: Swivel at the waist, circling the trunk down to the right, around to the left and up. Relax and repeat the exercise six times.

Before you go on to the next waistline slimmer, stand up and circle the arms backwards from the shoulders in loose, swingy movements. This will prevent tension through the shoulders.

Position: Sit on chair with legs straight out, feet apart, and with the arms held straight out at sides, shoulder-level. Again, make yourself taller by stretching through the midriff.

Movement: Twist sharply at the waist and without letting up on the midriff stretch, bend the trunk to touch right hand to left ankle, pull yourself up slim and straight again, then twist and bend to the other side. Repeat six times.

Now stand up and flop forward with the trunk from the waist, and shrug your shoulders loosely—keep on shrugging as you come up to an erect standing position. Relaxing in this manner prevents the accumulation of tension.

Position: Sitting on chair, legs straight out and feet apart, hands clasped back of head and elbows out at sides, in line with the shoulders.

Movement: Stretch through the midriff again, twist at the waist, then bend down touching right elbow to right knee. Straighten up, stretch, twist and touch left elbow to left knee. When you get warmed up, try to touch right elbow to left knee and repeat six times, alternating sides.

Send stamped envelope, self-addressed, for the leaflet "Stretch the Fat From Waistline, Ribs, Wristbone" to Ida Jean Kain, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Fritz Feld, Virginia Kraft Marriage Seems To Start Off Full of Disadvantages

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 11.—"This is the happiest week of my life," says Fritz Feld. "And the busiest." The 40-year-old character comic becomes a husband (for the second time Sunday), with 20-year-old blond beauty (Virginia Kraft) as the bride.

There is more to this marriage than meets the eye at first glance. Wife-to-be Virginia wants a movie career. Husband-to-be Fritz wants a honeymoon. Ernst Lubitsch wants him for a role in "That Uncertain Feeling." Clarence Brown insists on having him for "Come Live With Me." Add to this the toothache of Bride Virginia. "Plus the determination of Fritz to eliminate the handicap—if any—of the twenty years' difference in age—and you get some idea of the condition of Mr. Feld when I chatted with him yesterday.

It's hard to know where to begin. "In considering the difference in our ages," says Mr. Feld, "Virginia, who is a sensible girl, had this to say, 'If I marry a man of my own age, he will be like me, trying to make a career for himself. He would not have the time or the position to help me. Now in you (that's me) in addition to love, I have the complete actor-writer-director. You can help me.' But," adds her devoted bridegroom, "Virginia isn't going to neglect our home. She says she will make a success of both, home and career." The latter, for the new Mrs. Feld, begins the very second they return from a ten-day honeymoon.

And this brings me to her toothache. "I've known what the naughty little girl did," Fritz demands of me. I don't, so he continues, "she had all her wisdom teeth out—and her face is swollen up to here," and he bulges his cheek six inches out. "You see, she didn't want any interruption in her career, and she thought this would be a good time to have it done."

And that brings me to why Fritz is working night and day this week, starting and finishing two roles in two pictures. "No honeymoon, no marriage—I was determined on that," says Fritz, "so when Mr. Lubitsch wanted me for his picture, I said, 'No—I'm getting married on Sunday.' 'I'll be your best man—if you make my picture,' he then told me. I couldn't refuse such a wonderful offer. Then Metro offered me a week's pay for two days' work with Medy Lamarr and Jimmy Stewart in 'Come Live With Me.' I couldn't refuse that, either. So, I'm rushing back and forth, doing both. Just think—the money I make this one week pays for my wedding, my honeymoon, and the furnishing of my new apartment. Yes," he admits in reply to my query, "I'm exhausted!"

What with Virginia's swollen face and toothache and Fritz's near-collapse, I wouldn't be surprised if the wedding—and the honeymoon—is celebrated in a hospital—with the best man a doctor—and the matron of honor—a nurse! Well, anyway, good luck, Fritz and Virginia.

MY DAY: Planning National Art Week Exhibits

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

NEW YORK CITY, Sunday.—Friday evening I attended the National Urban League. I am always impressed by the continuing and faithful interest shown by Dr. William J. Schieffelin, Judge Ulman, of Baltimore, Md., and Mr. Hollister Wood, together with many others in the work of this organization. I think the Urban League has done much through the years to improve the conditions for the colored people and to create better understanding between colored and white people throughout the country.

All those of both races who have worked so earnestly together deserve our interest and gratitude. We are interested in democracy and believe that the success of democracy depends upon the rights of every individual citizen being recognized everywhere in the country. This will come only through patient work.

It is most interesting to find how many people were deeply impressed by the prayer which the President read the night before election. There must be a hunger in men's souls for a spiritual note even in such mundane things as political speeches. During the course of the past few days, a taxicab driver, our superintendent in the White House, my maid, a college professor and various other people have told me that such an ending to the campaign wiped out bitterness and gave them hope.

Yesterday morning we went down to a warehouse to see some of the paintings, sculpture and craftwork which have come in for the exhibitions which will be held in the five boroughs of New York City during National Art Week, beginning November 25. Some 62 are already planned and the jury has been going over the exhibits.

I hope the purpose behind this week will be accomplished, that more people will realize when they like a picture, piece of sculpture, or a bit of pottery, that it is possible to obtain it and take it home to live with an enjoy permanently.

More and more we are going to art galleries and exhibitions and our appreciation of art has increased. But museums cannot be the only market for an artist's wares and we must realize that many things are made to live with in our homes and not to be housed in museums.

I lunched with the United Parents' Associations of New York City, and was delighted to have a chance to see the mayor for a few minutes. Then I drove to Beacon to attend the wedding of my friend, Miss Jane Brett, and returned to New York City.

Shorter Alumnae To Hold Annual Luncheon Saturday

• • • IT WAS WITH TRUE feminine guile that the alumnae of Shorter College selected Saturday, November 16, as the date for their annual November breakfast. The choice, of course, was prompted by the fact that there would be no difficulty in persuading out-of-town husbands to drive their alumnae wives to Atlanta on the day of the Tech-Alabama football game!

This year's breakfast party will be held at the Georgian Terrace hotel at 11:45 o'clock, with Louise Bennett, the alumnae secretary, in charge. She has arranged the program so that the entertainment features will be held while the guests are breakfasting, in order that those who plan to attend the game will not have to scramble to get to Grant Field in time for the kick-off.

Mrs. Robert Arnold, of Covington, the former Florence Turner, is president of the alumnae association and will be in Atlanta to preside at the breakfast. Mrs. Athos Menaboni, the former Sarah Arnold, as president of the Atlanta Shorter Club will welcome the out-of-town visitors.

Honor guests for the occasion will be Dr. Paul M. Cousins, president of Shorter College, and Mrs. Cousins, of Rome; Dr. and Mrs. Ellis Fuller, Dr. and Mrs. M. L. Brittain, Mrs. Ryland Knight, all of Atlanta; Mrs. J. J. Clavett, of Tifton; Mrs. A. W. Aubrey Matthews and Mrs. A. W. Van Hoose, of Rome. Representing the faculty will be Dean and Mrs. E. E. Porter, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Preston and Dr. and Mrs. John Ware.

Mrs. Arthur Pew, the former Sarah Smith, is in charge of decorations for the party, which will appropriately carry out the theme of the occasion. Since Sarah is noted for her artistic ability and inherent good taste, the decorations are bound to be unusually interesting.

From all over Georgia and neighboring states, graduates come annually to this general alumnae meeting. This year they are asked to make reservations in advance either with Mrs. Cecil Mozley, 390 Redland road, N.E. 6755, or Mrs. French Snelling, 564 East Wesley road, Ch. 5908.

• • • ATTRACTIVE and appropriate invitations featuring a luncheon given yesterday by Mrs. Ed Gauthorn and Mrs. Norman Cooledge, who entertained at the home of the latter on Huntington road. The party, you know, honored four debutantes, Mary Lib Beers, Elsa McCall, Helen McDuffie and Evelyn Harrison, but it was inspired because of the friendship of many years' standing between members of the "Dinner Club."

This club of young couples meets weekly for dinner and bridge at homes of the members, who include Mr. and Mrs. Cauthorn, Mr. and Mrs. Cooledge, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Beers and Mr. and Mrs. Howard McCall Jr. When Mary Lib Beers and Elsa McCall decided to make their bow to society, it was perfectly natural for these close friends of their parents to entertain in their honor. Evelyn and Helen are two other debutantes sharing the affection of Mrs. Cauthorn and Mrs. Cooledge, so they, too, were asked to be among honor guests.

All the debutantes gathered for the luncheon, which was served buffet style at the Cooledge home. Will Cauthorn, a valued member of the Primrose Garden Club and noted for her artistic arrangement of flowers, designed the floral decorations yesterday. She chose deep red chrysanthemums, which were a beautiful match for the draperies in Mrs. Cooledge's handsome home.

Mrs. John Fisher, of Williamsburg, Va., seated, and Mrs. Glenville Giddings, on the arm of the chair, are pictured at the elaborate tea given yesterday by Mrs. Giddings, who entertained at her home, "Pinebloom," in Druid Hills for Mrs. Fisher. The affair was the first social affair complimenting the distinguished visitor, who is in the city to lecture this afternoon and evening at the Piedmont Driving Club under the auspices of the Druid Hills Garden Club, of which Mrs. Giddings is the president. Mrs. Fisher speaks this afternoon on "Flower Arrangements of Colonial Williamsburg," and this evening her subject will be "Gardening and the Use of Flowers."

Floral Arrangements To Add Interest To Fisher Lecture

Period arrangements of flowers, foliage and dried plant materials which will be exhibited by 12 Atlanta garden clubs will add unusual interest to the lectures given today by Mrs. John R. Fisher, at the Piedmont Driving Club.

Mrs. Fisher, who will speak at 3 o'clock this afternoon and again at 8:30 this evening under the auspices of the Druid Hills Garden Club, is nationally recognized for the beauty of her flower and fruit arrangements in the public buildings of colonial Williamsburg.

Mrs. Fisher has been in charge of these since the earliest days of Williamsburg restoration, and the authenticity and charm of her talks, supplemented by colored slides, are the subject of wide comment everywhere. This evening's lecture will deal with the history of flowers and will be in the nature of a fascinating travelogue of Williamsburg, with particular emphasis on the interiors and the flower arrangements.

The exhibits of the Atlanta garden clubs will be arranged on reproductions of Williamsburg furniture, which are placed in niches on either side of the club ballroom. There are groupings of dining room and drawing room pieces, and the arrangements will include those appropriate for the different settings.

The Habersham Garden Club will be represented in an all-white arrangement done by Mrs. Donald Hastings, past president of the Garden Club of Georgia and a member of the National Advisory Council of Garden Clubs. Mrs. Hastings has chosen a silver wire to hold sprays of silver ar-

Miss Murrow Weds E. McC. Belknap In Connecticut

WASHINGTON, Conn., Nov. 11. The marriage of Miss Bessie Tift Murrow and E. McCamly Belknap took place today at the First Congregational church here, with Rev. Wilbur S. Deming officiating.

Dudley Watson Moor Jr., of Toledo, Ohio, was best man, and the ushers were George Moor, of New Britain, Conn., and Weyman G. Strother, of Montclair, N. J.

Mrs. Osgood Perry, of Washington, Conn., was her cousin's matron of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Marie Perry, of Washington, Conn., and Miss Salie Fort, of Washington, D. C. Little Miss Rulietta Belknap Coates, of Newton, N. J., acted as flower girl.

Mrs. Perry wore an afternoon gown of Burgandy crepe, with a Burgandy velvet turban and face veil. Her bouquet was of tall-man roses and blue delphinium. The bridesmaids were dressed in similar gowns, of periwinkle blue silk, with matching hats, and carried bouquets of pink roses. The flower girl wore a frock of pink chiffon and carried a small basket of petals.

The lovely young bride was given in marriage by Major James L. Fort, of Washington, D. C. She wore a gown of ivory satin designed on medieval lines with a sweetheart neck, long sleeves and a graceful skirt, which flared into a train. Her tulle veil was caught to a Juliet cap of rosepoint lace trimmed with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of gardenias and valley lilies.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Osgood Perry.

The bride is the daughter of John B. Murrow, of Orlando, Fla., formerly of Tifton, Ga., and the late Mrs. Tiliou Bacon Murrow. She is a granddaughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. E. H. Bacon, of Eastman, Ga., and a great niece of the late Mrs. Bessie Tift, Mrs. I. W. Myers, of Tifton; Mrs. W. B. Willingham and Mrs. B. L. Willingham, and a niece of the late Mrs. A. R. Colcord, of Atlanta, Ga. She is a graduate of Bessie Tift College and studied music in New York City, where she resided for several years.

The groom is the son of the late Dr. Eugene Walker Balknap, well-known surgeon of Syracuse, N. Y., and the late Mrs. Isabella Hall Balknap. He is president of the American Mat Corporation in Toledo, Ohio.

Possesses Individuality

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS

MISS ISABEL VRETMAN.

Miss Isabel Vretman, the younger of the two charming daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Vretman, has the type hand known as the Spatulate, indicating tremendous energy and strongly marked individuality. It is a hand full of enthusiasm and energetic purpose.

The possessor of this hand will not be impulsive or inclined to fly off the handle, as caution and self-control are shown in the close joining of the head and life lines under the long first finger.

The palm of this hand is firm, denoting energy, force and courage. The head line, clear and deep, expresses concentration and a practical mind.

The mounts or elevations on the hand are all well developed, and the little finger, called the finger of Mercury, is well formed and set noticeably away from its neighbors. This indicates a nature that is adaptable, tactful and painstaking.

September 13 marks her birthday, bringing her under the influence of the astrological sign, Virgo, whose ruler is the planet Mercury. The qualities that the hand shows are intensified under her astrological influence.

The fact that the line of fate or destiny bends slightly under the second finger foretells a successful and happy life.

Marriage will probably come early in this young belle's life. Her choice is likely to fall on a young man of the professional type, who will make a decided success in his career.

Her astrological color is blue. Her gem the turquoise.

On Friday Mrs. Jennings will analyze the hand of another debutante exclusively for the Atlanta Constitution.

Assembly Body To Probe Road Group Is Seen

Debt Row May Not Be Settled Until January.

By LUKE GREENE.

Conflicting contentions as to what constitutes the real debt of the State Highway Department may not be settled until the General Assembly meets in January when, some observers think, another economy committee or a special committee will be named to investigate thoroughly conditions in this department which has been under fire for many months.

State Auditor Zach Arnold recently placed the debt of the department at $13,843,407.89 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1940, and subsequent estimates have run as high as $21,000,000. However, Governor Rivers later called for the maturing debt, payable and past-due obligations of the department as of October 31, and was informed they amounted to $3,734,756.90. This figure, he contended, more nearly approximates the real debt.

The state auditor stands firm on his report, although he agrees the deficit set out in that report includes commitments on future contracts, some of which will not be fulfilled for several months.

Economy committee of the last legislature did not go into an investigation of the Highway Department, but one of its last recommendations was to the effect that a thorough study of the complete operations of this department should be made in order to ascertain whether economies could be increased efficiency could be had.

There have been persistent rumors lately that another economy committee will be set up in the next legislature to include the senate.

The 1938 committee was restricted to the house.

Lengthy Report.

In its lengthy report, the 1938 committee said:

"The committee does not wish to be understood as intimating that no study of the activities of the highway department should be made; undoubtedly a proper study of the activities of the highway department might reveal possibilities of great savings and further efficiency in the operation of the department."

However, the committee went further and outlined what such an investigation should include when it said:

"A proper study cannot be made except through the assistance of technically trained men who are equipped to study and analyze material used machinery, grading and construction done and other such details relating to the work of the highway department."

"A mere study of the personnel of the department, without a study of the necessary expense referred to would not give a true picture as to whether or not the highway department is operating on an economical and efficient basis," the report added.

Matter of Conjecture.

Whether the next legislature will to the necessary expense of obtaining trained technicians to carry through such an investigation, in view of the state's financial condition, is still a matter of conjecture.

This committee also recommended the institution of a pre-audit system, but the general impression is that the state is not yet ready for such a sweeping change.

The committee pointed out that the present practice is to make lump sum payments to each department on the first of the month on the basis of what that department is entitled to receive under its approved budget, leaving the department head free to spend this money without check or control.

Under the pre-audit system each individual expenditure would have to be audited and approved before the expenditure is made.

Such a system would require additional personnel and would virtually place the purse strings in the hands of one man, it was explained.

Texas Aggies Ranked First by Williamson; Stanford Is Second

All in The Game
BY JACK TROY

On Other Foot At the final meeting of the general committee in charge of the annual football game for the Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children, it was suggested that this year the football shoe is on the other foot.

Someone recalled what Wally Butts had said at Billy Wardlaw's annual steak fry several weeks ago. Wally said that many crippled children would be well and walking around before Georgia recovered from the publicity given its freshman team of last year.

And it was suggested that, in all fairness and without any attempt to put anyone on the spot (it is all for sweet charity), Georgia Tech this year has as many good backs as Georgia is supposed to have had last year.

Mr. Hugh Carter, staunch Tech supporter, listened avidly to this line of thought, and when it came Mr. Carter's turn to speak, he said—

"I am in favor of such an idea only if the score turns out the same."

Georgia's point-a-minute freshmen of last year defeated Tech's Baby Jackets, 33 to 0, on Thanksgiving Day.

The word is getting around that the McHughes and the Pascals and the Eldredges and the Cogburns and the McDonalds are just as good, or maybe better, as freshman as the Sinkwiches, Davieses, Todds, Keupers, Blantons, etc., of last year's famous Bullpup aggregation.

It will be interesting to see, anyway. The teams are meeting on the President's Thanksgiving Thursday week at Grant Field, and there is no reason why there should be any less than 20,000 supporters in the stands.

Inspiration It was highly inspiring to hear Tom Law tell how the Scottish Rite hospital was started in Atlanta.

Mr. Law recounted how, without any preparation, the late Forrest Adair appeared before the high council of the Scottish Rite and made an appeal which could not be denied.

Forrest Adair, great humanitarian, told how he had been kept awake by a trombone player. And how this trombone player kept playing "I'm Forever Blowing Bubbles."

Mr. Adair started to complain and have the playing stopped, and then he began to think about the song. The theme of it began running through his mind—"forever blowing bubbles."

And so he convinced the Shrine that there were far greater things than monuments of stone. His idea was there should be monuments in the restored bodies of crippled children.

That idea was born 25 years ago. And today, on the 25th anniversary of the mother hospital here in Atlanta, there is no way to measure the good that has been done. It is measured in terms of kindness, happiness and good citizenship.

"Strong legs will run that weak legs may walk"—this immortal line was conceived years ago by Ralph McGill and today is used everywhere as the Shrine slogan.

A dollar is little enough to pay for the kind of football that will be on display.

Strange Plan Once upon a time in the Southern League there was a plan whereby the team finishing first in the regular season failed to win the pennant.

The plan was dropped like a hot potato after one year. The Southern League still operates under the Shaughnessy system, but the play-offs only decide which team shall play the Texas League winner in the Dixie Series.

Oddly enough, the Texas League still operates under the Tarcical plan whereby the team finishing first in a schedule of 154 games has to play-off for the pennant.

Houston, long a bitter enemy of the whole Shaughnessy plan, wants that part of it changed, at least. The Houston club will fight to have the team finishing first in regular season recognized as a pennant winner. Anything else, they argue, is illogical. Which, of course, it is.

The Shaughnessy will come in for much discussion at the annual meeting of the minor leagues here in Atlanta in early December.

It's not quite clear what the Texas League teams play for in regular season. It means just as much to finish fourth as first. In fact, only two seasons back, fourth-place Fort Worth beat out first-place Houston for the pennant in a short play-off.

Some baseball folks still think the entire Shaughnessy play-off plan is a great thing for baseball. If it is something should be done along this line—either start the baseball season earlier or arrange to start the football season later.

There's too much conflict under the present arrangement.

New Papa Jimmy Sanders, for many years secretary of the Southern League, is the happy papa of a seven and one-half pound boy. After Judge John D. Martin, league president for 19 years, the Sanders heir has been named James Martin Sanders. Mother and son are doing nicely at Emory hospital.

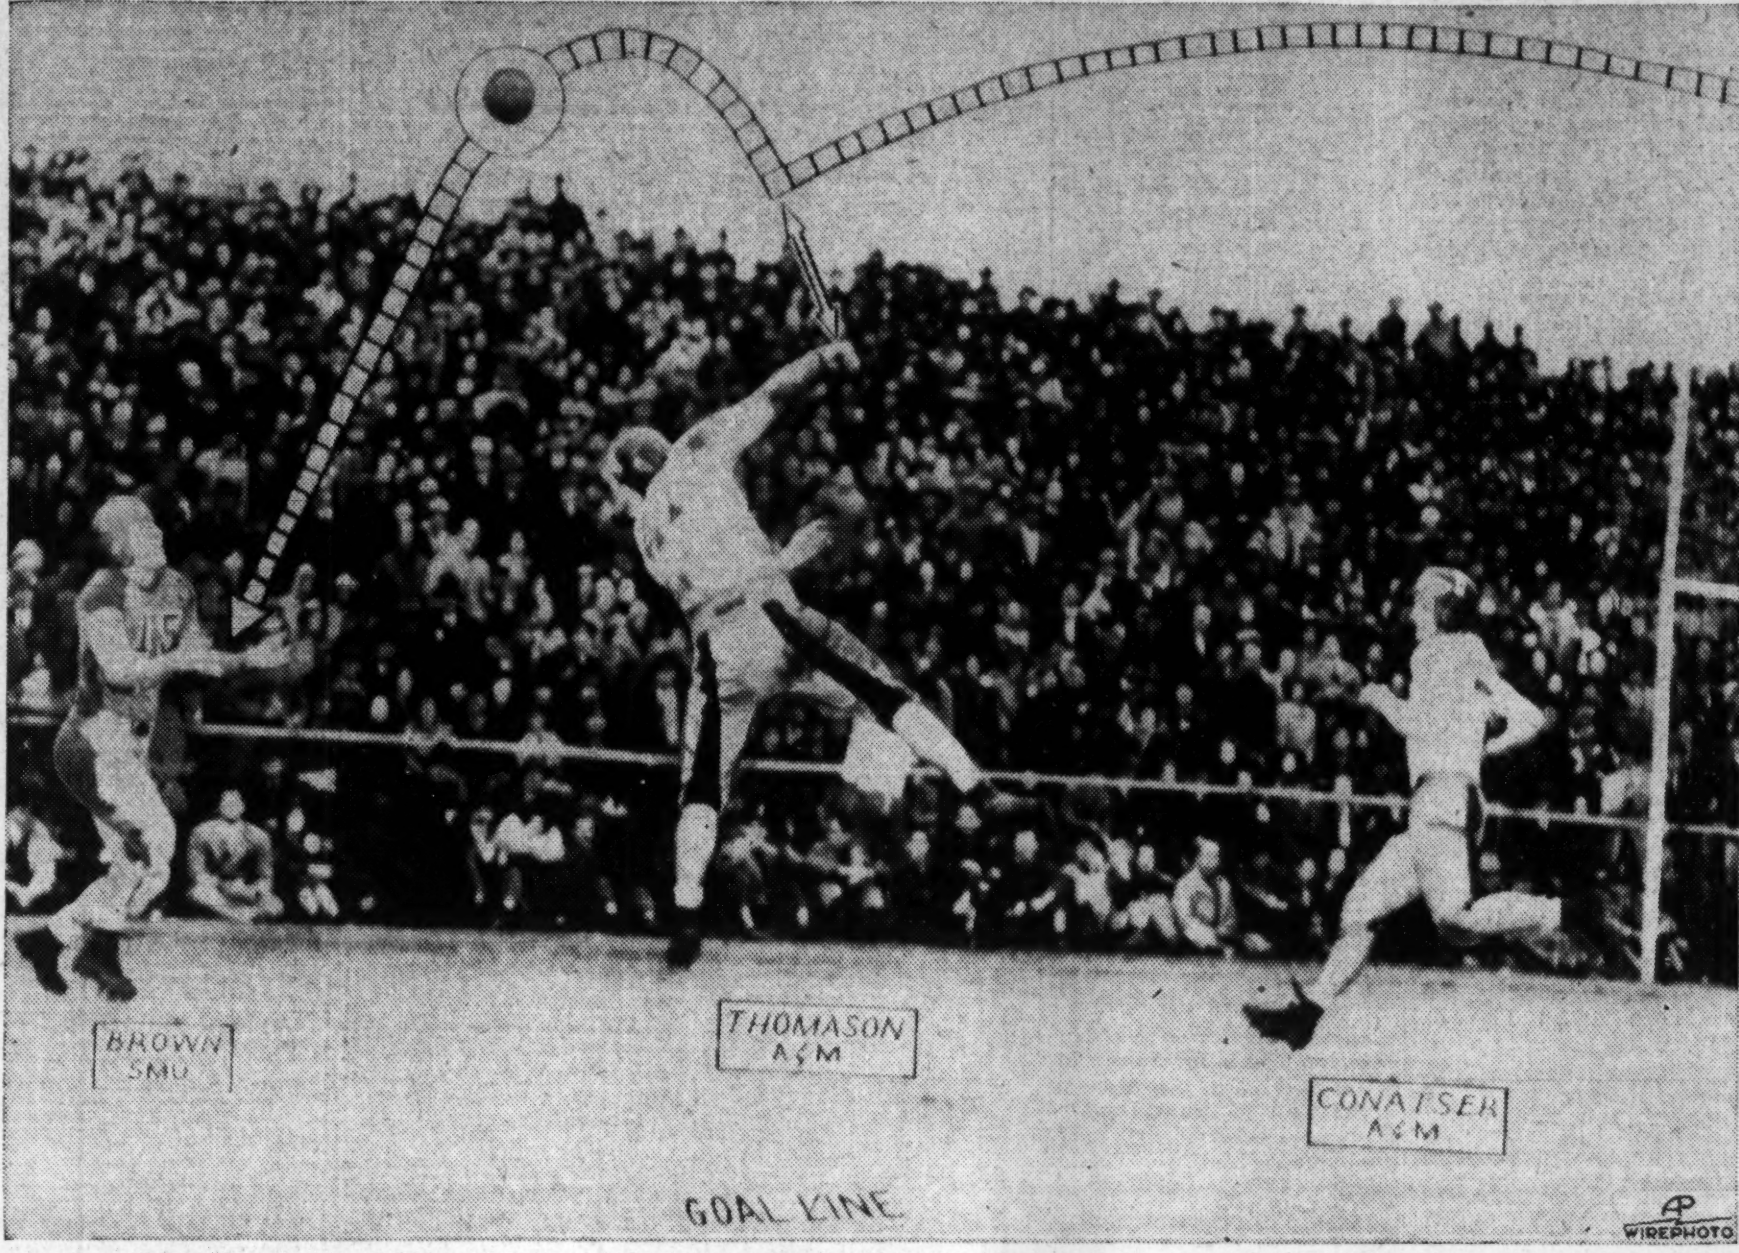

Friends of Sanders yesterday were talking in baseball parlance in explaining how the father was based. They said that "after four bawls, Jimmy Sanders walked."

Evashevski Named To Yankee Eleven

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 11. (P)—Coach Lynn Waldorf, of Northwestern, who with Carl Snively, Cornell, will coach the North team in the third annual

Blue and Gray football classic, wired yesterday that Captain Forest Evashevski, of Michigan, had accepted an invitation to play on the "Yankee" team.

Evashevski scored Michigan's touchdown against Minnesota Saturday, Waldorf described him as the best blocking back in the Midwest.

WEIRD PASS SCORES FOR S. M. U.—A pass that almost failed gave Southern Methodist University its only touchdown against Texas

A. & M. Saturday. Ray Mallouf hurled a long pass to Bobby Brown, who was across the goal line, in the second period. Jim Thomason, Aggie back, tipped the ball, knocking it high into the air, and Brown caught it as it fell toward the turf for a touchdown.

Tulane Best Foe Since 1938, Says 'Bama Coach

Frank Thomas and His Players Rate Wave Above Vols of 1939 and '40.

By THAD HOLT.
Frank Thomas spoke a controversial mouthful after Alabama's 13-6 victory over Tulane at Birmingham Saturday.

Said the chubby Tide leader: "Tulane is the best team we have played since 1938."

In plainer words, Thomas regards this Green Wave as a stronger force than it was last season, a better club than the 1939 Georgia Tech outfit and, more significantly, superior to Tennessee this year and last.

To make Thomas' contention more weighty, the Tide players, right down to the last man, agree with their coach.

If that isn't enough to convince the skeptics, take the word of Frank Howard, Clemson coach, who says Tulane is far and away a better team than the one which played Texas Aggies in the Sugar Bowl last New Year's. Howard's Clemson Tigers were recently soundly shellacked by the Greens.

THERE IS DOUBT.
Permit this correspondent to add his own humble opinion. He believes Tulane to be a stronger and more versatile team than it was a year ago, but isn't so sure about the Green Wave's superiority over the current Tennessee outfit.

After all, Tennessee beat Alabama, 27-12, and Alabama beat Tulane. Alabama thinks she could take the Vols in a return game. However, the Crimson Tide has their chance and didn't make good.

Getting back to this Tulane team, it is a crushing force, a fact Georgia will most assuredly find out Saturday at New Orleans.

THIBAUT GREAT.
The Greens have one of the greatest running fullbacks in the land in Jim Thibaut, and that includes John Kimbrough, of the Texas Aggies. Only a sophomore, the 196-pound Thibaut was able to consistently burst through the huge Alabama line like a shot from a cannon. Battering ram is the word for him. Thibaut (pronounced Tee-Bow) also is an excellent passer. Once last Saturday he tossed a beauty 50 yards in the air and it skimmed off the arms of Al Bodney, Greenie end. He is a threat as a field goal kicker. Jim Booted one against Rice.

Lou Thomas, Fred Cassidy, Bob Glass, Ely Ely are other top-ranking Tulane backs. They operate behind a rugged and vicious line, led by Captain Tommy O'Boyle at guard. The Tulane line averages 201, the backfield 193.

Undoubtedly, there never has been a team in the south and there is not likely to be one again which had lost four games, as has Tulane, and yet could stand up against Red Dawson's club. It was an unlucky team against Alabama, but no man in the stadium doubted it was a great one.

Winner of the Georgetown-Boston College game seems to be a lead pipe cinch for one of the bowl games.

Turkey Meet Set For Candler Park

Next Wednesday the ladies of the Candler Park Golf Club will hold a turkey tournament. Turkeys will be awarded for low gross and low net in classes.

The finals in the President's tournament will also be played in connection with the turkey tournament.

Three Shots for a Buck!

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Nov. 11.—(P)—Grady Cole, Bill Bivens and Charles Crutcheff, Charlotte radio announcers, told this one: While hunting deer near Hendersonville, they spied a choice specimen almost simultaneously and without ado raised their guns and blasted away—almost in unison.

The deer tumbled. Each hunter said that he had bagged the buck. As the argument waxed louder and longer, someone suggested that they examine the deer.

Three bullets had struck it, and each had found a vital spot. So the men decided to divide the meat into three shares. And all kept their shirt tails. Now they are arguing about the antlers.

30,000 Fans Expected for Tech Vs. Tide

Jackets Hope To Hold Down Score Against Huge 'Bama.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.
Rain forced Georgia Tech's football team indoors yesterday as the battered Jackets opened work for their game with Alabama Saturday afternoon at Grant Field.

Clad only in sweat clothes, the Jackets took to the gym where a couple of hot touch games took place. Then a few plays were run and the team adjourned for a lecture and a look at their mistakes against Kentucky as shown by the moving picture camera.

LITTLE HOPE.
Tech coaches hold little hopes their team can cope with the big bruising Alabama squad, which last week defeated Tulane after slaughtering Kentucky the week before. The Crimson Tide has far too much manpower for the Jackets and coaches hope they get by the game with no injuries so the team will be in good shape for the Florida and Georgia games.

Scout Roy McArthur, who saw the Tide defeat the Green Wave, said he saw little chance of Tech playing the Elephants a close game unless "we have eight inches of snow Friday night."

Although Red Muether, tackle, and Jim Wright, center, will be able to play for the first time in two weeks, the outlook for the Jackets is still dark. Comparative scores make Alabama 50 points better than Tech, but you can't go by that.

OTHER UPSETS.
Fans remember the 1938 14-14 tie and last year's 6-0 victory by Tech and hope for the better but expect the worse. There is little doubt the Alabamians remember these two scores, also, and will be doing all in their power to erase the unpleasant memories.

A record home crowd for the season, 30,000, is expected for the battle, although Tech's record thus far is anything but impressive. However, the fact that Alabama is playing Tech has attracted the heaviest advance sale of tickets in years and, if the weather is good, Grant Field is likely to be packed and jammed.

Tech coaches hope the weather will clear up so two scrimmages may be held before Friday.

Tiger Cubs Tally in 4th, To Defeat Jackets, 7-6

36-Yard Pass Clicks; Baby Jackets Score Early in First Period.

By AL SHARP.
AUBURN STADIUM, AUBURN, Ala., Nov. 11.—Auburn scored on a 36-yard pass play here in the last quarter this afternoon and Elbert Couch, of Gadsden, Ala., place-kicked the extra point to beat Georgia Tech, 7 to 6, in their annual Armistice Day freshmen battle.

The Tech yearlings scored midway of the first period when Preston West, of Atlanta, blocked an Auburn kick and fell on it in the end zone, but Pat McHugh failed to add the point that would have brought a tie. The slippery ball was low of the crossbar on the placement.

BEAUTIFUL PASS.
The Auburn score came after McHugh had made a beautiful punt from the end zone to his 36-yard line. On the first play, Choix Dyer, end from Guin, Ala., broke into the clear about 20 yards past the scrimmage line and Tommy Kennell, who is from Jack Meagher's home town of Elgin, Ill., spiraled the ball into his hands.

It was a beautiful pass, one that you would not expect on a swampy field, which was flooded by rain.

A crowd of some 1,500 fans turned out in spite of the terrible weather. The rain did not let up until after the game started.

Because of the condition of the field, fans and alumni could tell little about the potential varsity material on the two squads. The speedsters did not have much chance. There were few passes and plenty of fumbles.

A. A. MacDonald, of Atlanta, was impressive for Tech in the running department. The 195-pound back got away once for 19 yards and he showed plenty of drive in the deep mud. MacDonald also was plenty good on defense.

PLENTY OF STARS.
Mutt Manning, of Albany, Ga., Ed Ryckley, of Atlanta; A. J. Faulkner, of Jacksonville, Fla., and West also starred for the Baby Jackets. McHugh, although he could not get away on runs, booted the ball well most of the time.

Buck Jenkins, whose punt was blocked for the Tech score, did better than you would expect on the rest of his punts, getting off one of 55 yards and several others that helped the Cubs' cause. Besides Couch, Everett Harwell, of Birmingham; Bill Shuler, also of Birmingham; and Jim Pharr, of Florence, Ala., played well for the winners.

The victory left Auburn's frosh undefeated in the Southeastern conference. This was their final game. The Cubs beat Florida, 9-0, and Georgia, 6-0, before bowing to Howard College freshmen, 12 to 6.

The Tech squad has one more game, meeting Georgia in Atlanta November 21, in the annual classic played for the benefit of the Shrine Hospital for Crippled Children. The Baby Jackets had tied Mississippi State, 7 to 7, in their only other game.

Based on accomplishments, Minnesota is No. 1 in football circles. Just take a look at the class of opposition the Gophers have knocked off.

Vols Are 3d; Cornell Drops To Fifth Spot

System Bats 77.2 Per Cent on 158 Games Reported.

By PAUL B. WILLIAMSON.
John Kimbrough and company, of the Texas Aggies, stay as the national leaders after jarring the Mustangs of Southern Methodist, 19 to 7.

The Aggies and Stanford came through for the Williamson system last week in two of the three outstanding games. Stanford's Indians turned back Washington's Huskies, 21 to 10, and emerged the only undefeated and untied big team on the west coast. For that accomplishment, the Indians rank as No. 2 in the nation.

The Gophers of Minnesota burrowed through on a muddy field to nose out 7-6 over an inspired Michigan squad, and upset the system on a very close rating. We picked Michigan on six-tenths of a point difference in ratings—97.6 to 97.00. Tom Harmon and his mates played a fine game, but the score says Minnesota was better.

Tennessee's Volunteers rose a notch to third place, idling on a 40-to-0 shutout of good little Southwestern at Memphis.

CORNELL FIFTH.
Minnesota stands in fourth place and the Big Reds of Cornell hold fifth place, undefeated and untied after blanking Yale, 21 to 0.

The Blue Devils of Duke held on to their sixth place by trouncing little Davidson on a lop-sided score of 46 to 13.

Michigan, with its one-point loss to Minnesota, is seventh. Northwestern jumped a notch to eighth place by defeating Illinois, 32 to 14. S. M. U., defeated only by Texas Aggies, is ninth. And Nebraska, with only one loss, to Minnesota, is tenth after beating Iowa, 14 to 6.

Best picks of the week in major circles included Alabama over Tulane, Auburn over Clemson, Rice over Arkansas, Denver over Brigham Young, Missouri over Colorado, Columbia over Wisconsin, Fordham over Purdue, V. P. I. over Furman, Bucknell tying George Washington, Mississippi over Holy Cross, Kentucky over Georgia Tech, Mississippi State over L. S. U., Detroit over T. C. U., Nebraska over Iowa, Wake Forest over North Carolina State.

BEST SELECTIONS.
Some others were: Oregon over U. C. L. A., Princeton over Dartmouth, Lafayette over Rutgers, South Carolina over Kansas State, North Dakota over South Dakota, Syracuse tying Penn State, Texas over Baylor, Tulsa over Catholic U., Notre Dame over Navy—oh, so close! Virginia over Washington and Lee, V. M. I. over Washington of St. Louis, Temple over Villanova, Western Reserve over Ohio University, Cincinnati tying West Virginia and Emporia Teachers over Wichita.

The funniest score in all football history was Manhattan 45, Marquette 41. Besides being a mighty lot of touchdowns that kept a crowd of 5,000 roaring, those score totals are pretty unusual.

There were relatively few upsets among the big names, but Florida winning from Georgia was indeed a surprise.

Dodgers Give $100,000 and Three Players for Phils' Kirby Higbe

Right-Hander Led National In Strikeouts

25-Year-Old Hurler Won 14, Lost 19 With Last-Place Phils.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(P)—There was a new note of exuberance tonight in the Brooklyn baseball fans' perennial chant: "Wait until next year." What could stop their Dodgers now, with Kirby Higbe added to a team that finished second in 1940 and needed only a 20-game winner to finish first?

Larry MacPhail, club president, announced today he had acquired Higbe, a great pitcher with a last-place club, from the Phillies in exchange for Pitches Vito Tamulis and Bill Crouch and Catcher Thompson Livingston, plus a little matter of $100,000.

"We paid plenty, but it was a 'must' deal from our standpoint," said MacPhail. "Our greatest need was a top-flight pitcher—a 20-game winner—and a young fellow with great stuff who could stand hard work. Higbe was the only fellow who met the specifications. We had to outbid other clubs, but we were successful because we had the money and the players."

NOT YET AT PEAK. "We've been studying Higbe for two years and we don't think he has reached his peak, and he should be good for 10 years."

Higbe broke in with Muskegon in the Western Association in 1933 and was with Atlanta, Portsmouth of the Piedmont League, Columbia of the South Atlantic, and Mobile of the Three-Eye before going to the Chicago Cubs in the fall of 1937.

The Cubs farmed him to Birmingham in 1938. He came back to Chicago in 1939 and on May 29 of that year the Cubs sent him to Philadelphia with Joe Marty and Ray Harrell in exchange for Pitcher Claude Passeau.

He has been a sensation with the last-place Phils. He won 12 and lost 15 in 1939 and this year he won 14 and lost 19, pitching 20 complete games and leading the league in strikeouts with 137.

SPEED AND CURVE.

Higbe is 25 years old. He is a right-hander with great speed and a good curve. In 10 of his 19 games this year his opponents scored three runs or less, and eight defeats were by one-run margins. Tamulis, a southpaw, was acquired by the Dodgers on waivers from the St. Louis Browns in May, 1938. He previously had been with the Yankee farm system. His 1940 record was eight victories and five defeats.

Crouch was purchased from Nashville in the fall of 1938. He was with Montreal in 1940, winning 14 and losing 11. Livingston was drafted by the Dodgers this fall from Springfield of the Eastern League, where he batted .282.

Higbe Predicts 20 Wins And $15,000 Salary.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 11.—(P)—Walter Kirby Higbe, youthful right-handed pitcher who was sold to Brooklyn by the Phillies today, believes he "can pitch the Dodgers to a pennant."

"I ought to win 20 games at

SINGTON RETIRES FROM BASEBALL

Fred Sington, prominent Southern baseball and former All-American football player, announces his retirement from professional baseball, which sport he has starred in for the past ten years. He has accepted a permanent connection on the sales staff of the Martin Johnson Motor Co., De Soto and Plymouth dealer here.

Fred states that the time comes to everyone in sports to secure a business connection with the future in mind, and he is very happy over this appointment, as he has been a part-time representative with the company for the past five years.

In the future his only connection with sports will be as an official in football games for the Southern conference.—(adv.)

least with tighter defense and better hitting," he said.

"I shall ask MacPhail (Larry MacPhail, president of the Dodgers) for $15,000 salary and I feel I will get it," Higbe declared. His salary with the Phils was reported to be $6,500.

The deal is the biggest involving the Phils since Chuck Klein went to the Cubs seven years ago for a reported $125,000.

Grid Ratings

These post-game ratings represent each team's efficiency of consistent performance to date this season, calculated by the Williamson National Rating System. The ratings indicate each team's relative strength in comparison with its scheduled opponents, but not always the strength of each team as compared to all the others in the league. The final ratings of the completed season, however, should be close to a 100 per cent measure of the strength of the respective teams. The percentage figures below (right-hand column) are the most important.

Physical Program To Get F.D.R. 'OK'

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 11.—(P)—John B. Kelly, city Democratic leader and former Olympic sculling champion, said today he will confer with President Roosevelt on the nation-wide physical preparedness program which he will direct and "then we will really go to work."

A bill introduced in congress by Representative Schwert would allocate $50,000,000 to the program for the first year, $60,000,000 the second year and up to $100,000,000 annually thereafter. The bill is now before the committee of education.

The measure also empowers the federal government through the governors of the various states to take over the school gymnasiums and school grounds it needs.

Henson Lost To Tech High Rest of Year

Star End Fails To Recover From Injury in Purple Game.

By JOHN MARTIN. Tech High has more trouble on its hands.

The Smithies ran into what Coach Sidney Scarborough described as "perhaps the best team we have played this year" at Anderson, S. C., last week and now they face three more tough ones with a good chance to lose all of them.

As if St. Petersburg, Charlotte Central and Memphis Tech were not enough to handle, Country Henson adds to the Smithies' woes by bowing out for the season with a knee injury.

Henson, who likely is the No. 1 end in town and a brilliant pass catcher, suffered the injury in the Boys' High game and has been on the shelf ever since. But not until yesterday did Scarborough give up hope of using him again this season.

NO CHANCES.

"It is very doubtful that he'll get back in uniform," Scarborough announced. "We don't want to take any chances with re-injuring him as jeopardizing his chances in college, where he should become a star."

Henson's loss will weaken the Smithies both on attack and defense. He will be replaced by Abe Bancroft in the starting lineup. Practice for the St. Petersburg game here Friday night was slowed to a standstill yesterday and the Smithies worked indoors. The Floridians will bring a team of unknown quality here.

School officials are planning a big game at the ball park and Principal W. O. Cheney announced that the Girls' Military Band will not only play, but will be official sponsor of the visiting team. The band itself some sort of precedent for host teams to shoot at.

Boys' High, which has another G. I. A. title tucked away, is preparing for trouble in Knoxville Friday. The Trojans always have been strong and an upset of the Atlanta team would not be a big surprise.

TRIP WORRIES.

The Purples found their peak against Tech High and Coach Shorty Doyal fears they now are thinking too much about the annual junket to Miami for their and his own good. Commercial will go to Savannah and Marist travels to Columbus High this week, while Russell entertains Fulton; Decatur goes to West Fulton and North Fulton seeks to clinch the N. G. I. C. championship at LaGrange.

Richardson will play at Bolton and Hapeville hops to Cartersville. G. M. A. will take an off-day.

Forte Outpoints Joey Archibald

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 11.—(P)—Tommy Forte, of Philadelphia, won his second straight major fight tonight, taking a 10-round decision from Joey Archibald, former world featherweight champion of Providence.

A crowd of 7,000 at the arena saw Forte, recent victor over bantamweight Champion Lou Salica, concentrate on a body attack to win by a wide margin. A right to the body and a left hook to the jaw almost floored Archibald in the 10th.

Bob Flock Leads In Delayed Race

SPARTANBURG, S. C., Nov. 11. The Armistice Day auto races at Spartanburg today were halted on account of rain and will be resumed Saturday afternoon. Bob Flock, of Atlanta, was leading when the race was stopped on the nineteenth lap around the half-mile dirt track.

Petrels, Left With Only Six Regulars, Cancel Stetson Game

Patrick Calls Off Hatter Engagement Until Next Year After Mishaps Riddle Squad.

By CHARLIE ROBERTS. The man without a country had very little on Oglethorpe's John Patrick, the coach without a team.

Things have been mighty stormy for the head mentor of the Stormy Petrels the past two weeks. They came so stormy the affable Patrick has been forced to cancel Oglethorpe's football game scheduled next Saturday with the Stetson Hatters in DeLand, Fla. Out of the 27 players on his squad, Patrick can point out only six who will be in condition and available to play by then.

The Petrels were badly crippled by injuries before their homecoming tilt against Newberry here Saturday before last, and lost their first old grads' day melee in 13 seasons. Then just before the squad was to leave for the Tampa tilt last week, several of his first-stringers were given the old heave-ho by college officials. They became ex-Oglethorpe students at the request of the college for alleged hazing of freshmen. That didn't make the Petrels any more potent in being routed by Tampa, 52-0.

Some of the players were called on to play all, or most all, the game even though injured. It did not add much to the general health and well-being of the hard-hit Petrel squad. After a count and hasty recount of those still breathing on his bedraggled squad, Pat found they numbered seven. Ross Abney, first-string quarterback, was called to the bedside of his father, who is critically ill in Chattanooga. There were six.

The husky Petrel head man with the big headache has agreed to play Stetson in DeLand next year instead of at Oglethorpe as originally planned to make up for the canceled game of this year. He hopes to rally the battered Petrel forces enough to play the other two games remaining on the Petrel slate with Erskine and Presbyterian.

P. S. Patrick thinks those two Texas coaches who called signals for their teams last week are sissies. He may have to play all four backfield positions and sub at one end to finish the season.

Baseball Loops Seek Protection From Draft

By the Associated Press. Protection against the selective service draft will be considered here December 4 when the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues holds its annual meeting.

An amendment to the major-minor league rules, submitted by Portsmouth, Va., of the Piedmont League, would permit any club of B classification or less to replace young players drafted for military duty with "any players obtainable at the time."

Under existing rules, the clubs are required to have on their active list during the playing season not less than six players who have not had prior to the opening of that season as much as three years professional experience.

Portsmouth's amendment would allow clubs considerable latitude in replacing players drafted from this group.

William G. Bramham, president-treasurer of the association, commented in his agenda, however, that "very conclusive proof would have to be provided to show player who absents himself from his club actually did so—not only for the 'purpose' of such service—but that he was actually rendering such service in the United States military units."

ALABAMA.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Alabama's Crimson Tide rested from its Tulane labors today, but Coach Frank Thomas planned to open up with heavy work for Saturday's game with Georgia Tech tomorrow. Second- and third-stringers had a light session today with the first stringers.

Libby Woodall and Wheeler Leeth still are bothered with injuries sustained early last week. Neither was able to play against Tulane, but both may be back for the Tech contest.

AUBURN.

AUBURN, Ala., Nov. 11.—(AP)—A heavy rain fell over the Auburn Plainsmen indoors today and the squad spent much of the afternoon studying motion pictures of their homecoming victory over Clemson, with Coach Jack Meagher pointing out mistakes and good points.

Weathering the Clemson game without injury, the Plainsmen had additional good news today with word that Tackle Chester Bulger would return to practice as soon as weather permitted and may be in shape for play against Louisiana State.

VANDERBILT.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Vanderbilt's football squad went about its preparations for an engagement with Tennessee Tech here Saturday with much of the day, determined to avenge a 20-0 tie the Commodore had played out last year's team.

Members of the squad except Halfback Mickey Flanagan, nursing a knee injury, participated in a long drill devoted equally to offensive and defensive maneuvers.

NORTH CAROLINA.

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Several of North Carolina's crimples returned to light work today as the Tarheels began preparations for the Duke game.

The number included Co-Captain Paul Severin, end, and Carl Suntheimer, center, who were held out of the Richmond game. Lalanee, Severin, Suntheimer, and end Austin ran with the varsity in dummy work, but it was still doubtful what shape they would be in, and particularly Lalanee, who has a bad foot and ran on a special pad rigged up by Trainer Chuck Quinlan.

TULANE.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Still seeking their first conference victory, the Tulane varsity rested today before beginning preparations for Georgia here. Reserves were put through a long scrimmage against the freshmen.

The Alabama game produced several minor injuries. "Bubba" Ely, sophomore halfback, receiving a fractured thumb, and Charlie Dufour, tackle, and Timmy Thibault, fullback, suffering bruised hands.

Todd, Poschner Make 'Soph-of-Week' Team

Bulldog End One of Outstanding Players at Jacksonville; Halfback Passed for Two Touchdowns.

By HARRY P. SNYDER. KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 11.—(P)—They've begun to separate the men from the boys, the consistent performers from the flash-in-the-pan fellows, in this business of choosing the top sophomore in the Southeastern Conference.

When the sports experts for the Associated Press finished their nominating speeches on the basis of last Saturday's games for the sophomore-team-of-the-week, the final draft revealed five repeaters and a half dozen newcomers.

The new stellar aggregation means that 26 of the Southeastern's newcomers have gained the honor list.

Auburn's Plainsmen again took team honors, getting three delegates on the roll, while Georgia and Florida checked in with two each.

Here's the latest line-up of stars:

End Tackle George Poschner Georgia L. S. U. Guard Floyd Konetsky Florida Center Tex Williams Auburn Tackle Nick Ardito Auburn End Willie Eddins Auburn Back William Horrick Tulane Back Fadden Metcalf Georgia Back Jim Todd Kentucky Back Bob Herbart Alabama

POSCHNER—Besides playing a bang-up defensive game, he caught a pass from Jim Todd good for 4 yards and a touchdown. The outstanding player on the field, snake one observer.

BARRETT—This big fellow was credited with putting the blink on Mississippi State's running attack, forcing the Maroons to the airways for their victory over the Louisiana Tigers.

SURPRISE PACKAGE.

KONETSKY—Here was one of the reasons why Florida turned out to be a surprise package. In the thick of the game, he made a three-foot dash into Georgia's backfield. He was the minute against the Greenies, counting one touchdown on a 13-yard run, dealing out first-class blocking and tackling.

WILLIAMS—Here's another repeater from the first list. Against Clemson he Llanerch, Pa. youth hot-footed it to cover a blocked punt and score the Plainsmen's first touchdown.

ARDILLO—Yep, this is the boy who paved the way for Williams' counter. He

And when the time Scottie is in love with her. Glory gets small parts in two pictures and moves to a smart apartment. When she returns to a beautiful diamond ring. She says she doesn't think she should accept it, as he tells her it is an engagement ring. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

INSTALLMENT XIX. Glory gathered up her purse and gloves, vowing to put all thought of Mona Greer from her mind. She had promised not to doubt him again. She and Allan were engaged. Nothing could come between them now and just because Mona had returned from Mexico was no reason for becoming suspicious.

Her resolution was not difficult to keep. Allan had never been more considerate or charming than he was that day in San Francisco. If he thought of Helen as extra baggage, he gave no sign of it, but was pleasant and courteous, and in return Helen stayed out of their way as much as possible.

"Don't bother about me," she told them the morning of their arrival. "I have an old friend here whom I want to be with as much of the time as is possible. So they were free for the day. Allan was making his appearance at the evening performance only. "Let's have lunch in Chinatown," Allan suggested and on Grant avenue he stopped at a florist's to get her two magnificent orchids.

"They're beautiful," Glory said, thrilled, pinning them on her suit. Allan was gazing at their reflection in the mirrored wall of the shop. "We're a swell-looking couple," he observed.

Glory laughed. His conceit amused her. But she saw people staring at them as they walked towards Chinatown. The handsome man with the beautiful girl at his side were a striking pair and one that was becoming increasingly familiar to Hollywood. Of course, Allan was already well known, but Glory's picture had been appearing with him now for weeks. They were shown dancing together, at premieres, restaurants, tennis matches. A half-column article about Allan had heralded his arrival in San Francisco in which he was again referred to as "the heartthrob of a million women." He had carefully cut it out and placed it in his overcoat pocket.

"The trouble with Allan is he believes his own publicity," Helen said scornfully. But Glory could understand how much these things meant to him. She did not resent the intensity of his love for his career. He had told her many times that it meant more to him than anything else in the world.

With her arm tucked through his, they walked through the streets of Chinatown. Glory was exhilarated by the fresh sea air and interested in the oriental wares displayed in the shop windows. Exquisitely made pajamas and robes, jade cigarette boxes, brass trays and white fur slippers. She was delighted when Allan insisted upon buying her a white brocade silk robe.

"Try it on," he told her, while the shopkeeper stood by watching with insatiable eyes. But even in Chinatown the heartthrob of a million women was well known. While Glory admired herself in the robe, which was heavily embroidered in gold, Allan was smilingly signing the autograph book of two giggling Chinese schoolgirls.

The robe was ordered delivered to their hotel, then Allan selected a jade cigarette holder for himself. His taste was perfect. He appreciated beauty in any form. Glory could well imagine what he must have suffered in the days when he was poverty-stricken; when he was forced to live without the luxury which had become a necessity to him.

At five they returned to the hotel for tea. It was Saturday and there was dancing.

Allan held her tenderly in his arms. "Having fun, sweet?" "It's wonderful," she told him. Life was always exciting with Allan. It was so thrilling to be the center of admiring and curious glances. Glory could see the envy in the other girls' eyes. And why not? To think that she was Allan Rhodes' choice! With all the women in Hollywood to choose from, Allan had selected her!

"My last appearance at the theater is at ten-thirty," Allan explained. "After that we'll dance. I'll take you to every night club in San Francisco worth seeing."

Glory and Helen had dinner in their room and at 10 o'clock Glory was dressing in the new black jersey. Its clinging sophisticated lines were exquisitely flattering, and with it she wore an elaborate gold necklace. But at 11 there had been no word from Allan.

"What do you suppose has happened to him?" she asked Helen, who had gone to bed.

"Why don't you call up the desk and ask if he's left a message?" Glory picked up the receiver.

"Has Mr. Rhodes come in yet?" she inquired.

"Yes, Miss Stevens, he was here just a few minutes ago taking a long-distance call . . ."

"Long distance?" Glory repeated.

"He had a call from Hollywood," the desk clerk explained. "I gave him the message when he came in."

"I see," Glory said. "Thank you very much!"

Helen looked up from the magazine she was reading.

"What now?" "I wish I knew," Glory admitted. "Allan has had a long-distance call from Hollywood."

"Probably the studio," Helen said, yawning.

But ten minutes later the phone rang. Allan said he was calling from a well-known night club.

"Climb into a taxi and come on over," he suggested.

His voice had sounded gay over the telephone and when Glory joined him she saw that he had been drinking.

"I met some newspaper boys," Allan confessed, "and we hoisted a few. I'm terribly sorry to have kept you waiting."

All her fears faded as he continued, "The studio called. They want me to go back to Hollywood tomorrow."

So it had been the studio after all!

"But you and Helen may as well stay," Allan went on.

"No," Glory told him. "It would not be any fun without you."

"You're sweet!" Allan said, pressing her hand. "Anyway, we'll have fun tonight, darling! Let's forget about everything."

Never had they been so gay. They went from one night club and hotel to another and in the small hours of the morning were having toast and coffee in a small all-night restaurant. In the taxi on their way back to the hotel Allan put his arms around her.

"I've never loved any one so much in my life," he said simply. "Darling," Glory cried, "Why can't we be married? Why do we have to wait?"

"Just as soon as I get going on this new picture we'll set the date," he promised. "It may not be longer than two weeks."

"Oh Allan!" Glory breathed rapturously.
